Objective: '... buy up the Village of Antioch'

Antioch's for sale

Lions put auction on the gameboard

By KENNETH PATCHEN Staff Reporter

y the 1998 holiday season, most of downtown Antioch will be for sale... ... on a game board under many decorated trees.

No lyin'.
Lions, for sure, but no lyin'.

Antioch Lions Club will assemble a board game for sale by mid-November called The Game of Antioch.

The colorful board game will

The colorful board game will feature names of residents and businesses of the village.

"Imagine a game of monopoly the game is like that," said Antioch Lion Adam Zakroczymski. He is the club's second vice-president and is leading the effort to create the game in time for the holidays.

"The actual game objective is to buy up the Village of Antioch," Zakroczymski said. Play money and game pieces will help players keep track of who does well at the game.

In real life, however, the real money can hit the table at noon on Tuesday, Aug. 20 when local merchants will have their first opportunity to purchase space for the name of their business on the board.

"The number of businesses that can appear on The Game of Antioch is limited to a total of thirty, plus the four corners," Zakroczymski said.

Board-space sales will start at noon Aug. 20 and continue until they are all taken. Game board positions will cost from $175 to $500, depending on their location. There are only four positions on the board, however, that will cost $500.

People who wish to have their Antioch business or industry on the game board can contact Zakroczymski "by telephone or in person" at noon. It is "on a first come basis." Telephone callers who leave volcemail messages at noon will have them returned in the order the calls are received, according to Zakroczymski. His telephone number is 838-1790.

Community residents will also have an opportunity to add their name to the game board playing surface, although for more modest cost. Zakroczymski said that there will be "a limited number of individual and family name listings around the center of the game board." Such a listing to show community support will be $25.

According to Zakroczymski, there should be no problem with allocating space for 200 names on the board.

The opportunity to be included on the game board ends on Tuesday, Sept. 15. By that date, Antioch Lions must have all the commitments and money in hand for the game to be manufactured in

ACHS gets $5.4 million state grant

By KENNETH PATCHEN Staff Reporter

Antioch Community High School officials played a wild card and obtained $5.4 million from the State of Illinois.

State of Illinois.

It was more than they expected.
The additional millions from the Illinois Capital Development Board will permit ACHS officials to expand modernization plans beyond that presently authorized and under construction.

ACHS has undertaken its own modernization program with $8 million it raised through Certificates of Participation. The state grant is an additional amount that creates more than $13 million for local school improvements.

"We've been able, through Certificates of Participation and state school construction grants, to raise $13 million without raising taxes," said Dr. Dennis Hockney, ACHS District 117 School Superintendent.

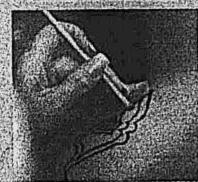

"It's great news," said Phillip Delany, president of the Board of Education. "The district has been able to invest over $13 million in improving its facilities and to do it without having to ask the local property owners for an increase in taxes."

The fact that ACHS receives the Capital Development Board grant is due to the initiative of school officials who applied for funding despite extremely short notice in 1997 that funds were available for the 1998 school year.

The $5.4 million of new state funds will upgrade the auditorium,

Parent Network finds alumni mortar for bricks

A.L.L. Parent Network memorial brick program gaining response

School rituals sometimes turn upon themselves to create nicer outcomes than expected. This story involves a watch and a brick.

The bricks are sold by the A.L.L. Parent Network of Antioch Community High School as a fund raiser to support programs for students and their families.

Bricks will be engraved with names and words of sponsors who buy them. Names are selected by those who make the contribution. ACHS will have the discretion to place the bricks where appropriate.

Bricks have been selling well according to Karen Powell. Powell is a member of the A.L.L. Parent Network.

This is an ongoing fund-raiser, so there is no deadline for purchase, yet. The school construction process will determine the end of opportunities to purchase memorial bricks.

"So, it's good to get the orders in early," Powell said.

The parent network also will be inserting order forms into school reunion materials so that graduates may also have an opportunity to consider a memorial brick for themselves or others.

"We're trying to target the reunions." Powell said.

"There are some 'In memory of," she said. "There's one purchased for the soccer club."

One of the special bricks involves long-time social studies teacher at ACHS Don Zeeman.

Zeeman has taught at ACHS for 25 years. "I'm the head of the social studies department," he said. He is also involved in the girls basketball program.

It is a tradition at the high school to recognize 25 years of service, typically with a nice wrist watch.

Instead, Zeeman chose to arrange a donation to the parent network.

"We bought him two bricks," said Powell, in response to the donation. He had donated the money in memory of his father.

"That's a very special donation," said Powell.

Don Zeeman said, "I made a donation to A.L.L. Parent Network with the proceeds that would have gone to a watch."

Frank Zeeman Sr., who died in April, lived in Antioch. His seven children attended Antioch Community High School.

time for sale in village stores several days before Thanksgiving.

Pre-sold copies of the board can be purchased, at a 20 percent discount, for $13.50 until Sunday, Nov. 1, by residents and business owners who order and pay in advance.

After Nov. 1, the game will be sold for $16.95. Stores in Antioch are expected to have the game available for sale.

The Lions will contribute proceeds from their sale of the game to the Brook wetland sanctuary project.

Zakroczymski said the Lions have undertaken this project "to help raise money for our two year commitment to help raise $20,000 toward the funding of the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center."

The sanctuary and entertainment center is east of downtown Antioch along Skidmore Street. The project will recreate historic wetland areas, serve as an educational center about wetland functions, and provide recreation and entertainment opportunities all year long. The late William E. Brook was a respected Antioch banker and avid outdoors man whose involvement in community projects was extensive.

Early this year, Antioch Lions Club committed itself to contribute $10,000 to the project in 1998 and 1999. In addition to the club's annual community activities, the mem-bers have expanded their fund-raising work. The Game of Antioch is one of the new activities.

The just completed 40th Annual Lions Chicken Barbecue in William's Park allocated a portion of the meal cost as a donation to the Brook memorial sanctuary. Lions have also tentatively discussed hosting a wild game dinner to be held in the fall, 1998, to raise additional Hockney said it will be an im-proved facility for theater productions. "A new auditorium is not in reach with this money," Hockney said.

There are six science laboratories in the south wing of the school that have served students since 1962.

"Now, we'll be able to upgrade those labs," said Hockney. "When that is completed, we'll have 10 state-ofthe-art science labs." The laboratories will be used for the biological, life, and earth sciences.

It is possible the laboratories will be ready by 2000.

"We've got to go through the planning process with the department," Hockney said. That will start soon.

Life safety improvements will bring the school operating systems and equipment into compliance with state and local codes. To meet modem codes, upgrades are needed. At ACHS, such features as bleachers, electrical systems, and plumbing need to be improved.

"We're able to address a lot of the Life Safety Amendments that are identified by the Regional (Superintendent of Schools) office."

Improvements to the arts area will focus on drama and art, such as drawing painting and sculpture. This involves three older rooms in the

The Capital Development Board grant will allow the school to implement many planned for, but unfunded, school improvements. Areas that can not yet be improved include additional auditorium and physical education facilities that are needed.

"We need to expand on (physical education) space in the future," Hockney said.

Vocal and music areas remain to be improved in some way.

The Capital Development Board grant was possible because ACHS officials had completed a planning process, had funding available from Certificates of Participation, and financing was in-place.

The present construction work, underway, is expected to be completed for the 1999-00 school year. At that time, the oldest sections of the school, built in 1917 and 1927, will be demol-

Village residents turned-out in force to have a chicken barbecue lunch served by the Antioch Lions Club. Slowly charcoal-grilled to tender perfection, half-chicken dinners were sold to about 2,500 people with the assistance of the Antioch Woman's Club.

The $7 cost of the meal will provide funds for community work by the Antioch Lions Club. A contribution from the sale of each meal is allocated to the Lion Club's annual $10,000 donation to the William E. Brook Wetland Memorial and Entertainment Center.

The Antioch Women's Club sold deserts to complete the meal. They also sold chances for Beanie Baby stuffed animals that had been donated by The Lambs Farm, of Libertyville, and Eva's Hallmark and Flower Hut, of Lindenhurst.

It was the last donation of the day.

PM&L Reader's Theatre presents Somerset Maugham

By KENNETH PATCHEN Staff Reporter

PM&L Theater continues to gain strength as a production company. This strength is reflected even in the acceptance of innovations for the Antioch audience.

PM&L Theater will present a Readers' Theater production of "Stories by W. Somerset Maugham" directed by Aileen Biel. The production will be Sunday, Aug. 9 at 8 p.m. at the theater at 877 Main Street near Orchard Avenue in Antioch.

This Readers' Theater production is presented almost immediately after the very successful summer run of the musical "Grease."

"There will be five selections read," said Biel. "Each story is about 10 minutes."

Biel selected this production for her directorial debut because of her own fondness for Maugham's short stories ever since she was young and would receive his books for Christmas.

"About every six years I work my way through them," she said of her continued appreciation for his writing.

People who will read the stories in her production are: Dee Baum, Shirley Jensen, Linda Mason, Steve Willding, all of Antioch, and Dianne Hoskin, of Lindenhurst.

"This is free," Biel said of the admission costs.

Readers' theater is an informal evening with different themes and forms. It last about one hour. After the show there are refreshments and conversation with the cast.

The audience for PM&L Readers' Theater has been developing. "They have gradually crept up," Blel said of audience size.

Increasing audience size is also a characteristic of the past season. It was certainly true for the last production, "Grease," directed by Mickey Mandel.

Just prior to the final shows, Mandel said, "We're having a wonderful run of the show. We've been totally sold out on every performance."

She believes that "Grease" has helped to build the audience for the PM&L Theater experience.

"I'm sure people have got very good feelings about PM&L, as they always have, and the show is helping to further that," Mandel said.

The box office numbers back her

PM&L President Fran Jansta noted that the entire past season has been much stronger than professional theaters expect.

"Of the six shows that we did, two were completely sold out," Jansta said. "We had attendance of 9,779, which is an average of 150 (per show), and we seat 183 people. So, we had an 82 percent capacity this year, which is really excellent."

Jansta said, "Most professional houses are happy with a 60 percent filling attendance rate."

Outpatient Surgery— The Victory Difference

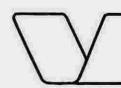

I'd never had surgery, so of course I was nervous. I really didn't know what to expect. But, my surgeon said I'd be very happy with the way they would treat me at Victory. He told me their same-day surgery department is the best he's worked with. The nurses are well-trained and extremely supportive. And, they're always ready to give patients a little extra hand-holding, a warm blanket and a reassuring smile.

My surgeon said he also appreciates the up-to-date equipment at Victory and the way everyone in the department works together. Then, he loaned us a video that explained about surgery at Victory in more detail.

My surgeon was right! From the very beginning everything went smoothly. I was pleased my family could be with me right up until I went into the operating room. And, when my surgery took a little longer than expected, the surgical nurse let my family know.

Advanced technology, dedicated nurses and an uncompromising commitment to patient satisfaction—that's why so many experienced Lake County surgeons have preferred Victory. You will, too.

Choose Victory. You'll recognize the difference.

SCOLIOSIS IN CHILDREN

Scoliosis is abnormal curvature of the spine that usually appears early in life. This spinal problem tends to afflict more females than males. The cause of most cases of scoliosis is not known, although some pul-monary and spinal diseases interfere with proper development of the spine. Some parents assume that children will "outgrow" scoliosis, but without early detection and treatment, the disorder worsens with time and can cause serious problems later in life. Not all of the problems resulting from scoliosis are back-related, but the spinal curvature forces the body to assume an unnatural position that can result in strained muscles, circu-lation problems, and impaired functioning of internal organs.

Many schools routinely provide

Prudential gives squad defibrillator grant

By KENNETH PATCHEN Staff Reporter

Prudential Insurance Company of America gave the Antioch Rescue Squad a $2,500 grant Sunday, Aug. 2 to cover approximately half the cost of a portable cardiac defibrillator.

The presentation by Daniel R. Bulicek was made to Wayne Sobczak, chief of the Antioch Rescue Squad, during a break in the Rescue Squad Auction.

"It is my pleasure to present a grant right now to the Antioch Rescue Squad for the purchase of a portable defibrillator," Bulicek sald.

As the grant was presented, rescue squad member Steve Smouse showed the brief-case sized unit to the audience. The defibrillator unit was covered with a bright yellow jacket with the 911 emergency number plainly visible.

According to Prudential, defib-rillators have been called one of the most important lifesaving inventions of this century. Defibrillators administer jolts of electricity to "reset" the heart's natural rhythm.

"Prudential is matching funds with the entities that meet the criteria for community service on providing automatic external defibrillators to communities," said Sobczak after the auction. "We happened to meet that criteria and applied for the grant." Antioch Rotary Club helped the rescue squad become eligible, according to Sobczak.

"We had to purchase one our-selves and that's where the Rotary Club from Antioch came in and purchased one for us," he said.

"It is something that's pretty much the latest technology and the up-and-coming change in citizen CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation). We'll be seeing these crop-up around the country for citizens to use who are trained on them when they're doing CPR prior to emergency medical services arriving on the scene."

Sobczak said, "They're very simple units. They are almost fool-proof. But, there needs to be a training (session) with a physician. We're in the process of getting that training program put together so that the folks in our community can start using these Prudential created the "Helping." Hearts Program" in 1994 to provide defibrillator grants to volunteer emergency medical service squads. By the end of 1997, more than 1,500 squads had qualified for $3.5 million in grants through the program.

The American Heart Association estimates that 250,000 people in the United States suffer sudden cardiac arrest and die. On-site defibrillators have been shown to double a victim's chances for survival.

Niccum to share $10,000 with friend

Longtime friends win Chamber/ CAN Raffle

By KENNETH PATCHEN Staff Reporter

The $10,000 Chamber/C.A.N. Raffle was won by Geri Niccum, of Lake Villa, and her friend for more than 25 years, Julia Bitner.

Both Niccum and Bitner bought raffle tickets with a mutual pledge to share whatever they won with one another.

Their winning ticket was pulled on July 18 at the taste of Antioch. Ten other people also won $200 in the $100-a-ticket-raffle.

There were five Antioch area winners: Tom Pientka, Don Skidmore, Mabel Lou Weber, Bob Schneider, Kenneth Golonka, and A.A. Tsarpalas.

Marc Mallen, of Lake Villa, and Diana Ceso, of Round Lake, also won. Other winners were Gloria Smith and Mike Zang.

To encourage early purchase of raffle tickets, C.A.N. sponsored an early-bird drawing for winners in May, 1998 at the start of ticket sales. Winners of the early bird drawing were Maureen Ryan, Candi Rowe, Laurie Stahl, Candy Tintari, and

Sherry Hoban. They are Village of Antioch employees who shared a Winners for the C.A.N. Raffle were drawn at the Taste of Antioch on July 18.

The Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry/C.A.N. Raffle proceeds will be donated to the William E. Brook Memorial Wetland Sanctuary and Entertainment Center.

C.A.N. is one of the committees of the Chamber of Commerce. "They work for the betterment of downtown Antioch," Chamber President Barbara Porch has said. The money raised is earmarked for the betterment of Antioch accord-

Will this week ever end

t has been said that crisis' usually come in waves of three. Well, a recent week at the Pringle Homestead proved that sometimes those disasters come in with the tide and keep rolling in with each pounding wave. Point being: Saturday rain was predicted but expected to go south of us so Mr. Pringle went ahead and seal coated the driveway. He started this project late in the evening, so in order to finish up the job he needed the assistance of the yard lights as well as both our cars headlights. Five minutes after he cleaned up his brush, the first flash of lightning lit up the sky.

I hate to admit how hysterically funny I found this to be. The next morning not only had our sidewalks turned black from the rain-running sealcoat, the car batteries were dead. Sunday afternoon, with a heat index of 114, hubby re-sealed the driveway. To no avail though could he restore the sidewalks to their natural color. Monday brought horrendous storms which pummeled the area with rain, tornado force winds and power out-

There was a tree in our yard that could no longer withstand the force of nature and fell to the ground. Well more appropriately, it fell on a certain maroon-colored Pontiac. All that was sticking out from under the tree was the driver's side headlight, or what appeared to be the headlight. That was a crisis in itself but what really became the earth shattering disaster was the fact the Mr. Pringle's prized golf clubs were in the trunk of that Pontiac.

Amidst lightning and rain he tried diligently to retrieve the

JINGLE PRINGLE

clubs. We had to physically restrain him and remind him of his young children who still needed their daddy in tact. Tuesday morning, as dawn approached, the roar of a chainsaw could be heard echoing through our neighborhood. His persistence paid off—the clubs were spared; the car, on the other hand, was a total loss. Tuesday afternoon brought more storms and many, many more fallen trees. Our yard resembled Mr. T's escapade down in Lake Forest some years

Monday, after searching for three months, I finally found the van of my dreams. Wednesday we went to buy itthey sold it Tuesday. Car salesman said it was a beauty, and he hadn't seen another one like it in the five years he had worked in car sales. Thursday, I got some major sun poisoning.

Friday, the boat wouldn't start. Saturday, the ice maker quit working. Sunday, I spent the entire day in church lighting candles and saying the rosary. Monday dawned with hope and optimism. A new week, a fresh start, and cries from the back yard "Mom the pool water is green."

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Share food works through summer

Antioch's Share Food program operates during summer months, but extra help is needed from volun-

In addition, there is a drive to bring new people into the volunteerbased food distribution opportunity.

Share volunteers unload the truck and repackage the food for quick pick-up by people who have made pre-payments for their share of the discounted food selection.

Pre-payment of $15.75 for orders is due two-weeks before food delivery. The payment allows eligible volunteers to receive $35 to $40 worth of groceries. Packages include at least three meats, fresh fruits, and fresh vegetables.

The August delivery date is Saturday, Aug. 29 at the Antioch VFW Hall on North Avenue, according to Ardeen Harris, Antioch program Share for coordinator Southeastern Wisconsin.

In Antioch, pre-payment can be made at First National Bank-Employee Owned, State Bank of The Lakes, Antioch Township Office, and the Lake Villa Township Office.

Interested people with questions can call Harris at 847-395-2761.

Share also has distribution points in Island Lake, Mundelein, North Chicago, Wadsworth, and Waukegan.

Share of Southeastern Wisconsin sometimes includes bonus items in the food orders. In July, participants who brought another participant into the program received a 28ounce apple pie. It is part of a promotion to bring 2,500 new people into Share.

Share has available in August a special Labor Day package of steak. It can be bought in addition to the regular monthly food package.

The Labor Day special is two 10ounce Porterhouse Steaks, four 10ounce T-bone steaks, and some Lawry's seasoned pepper. It will include an extra transportation fee.

Broker/Owner APPRECIATION ON YOUR HOME

Most people who rent a home are probably paying less each month for housing than they would pay for a mortgage on a similar home. Why are people willing to pay more each month to own their own home? A home grows in value over the years. The rate of appreciation depends on many factors--the location, interest rates, and the general economic climate in the community. If you purchase a property for $100,000 which grows in value at the rate of 5 percent each year, it will be worth approximately $121,000 at the end of five years. At a 10 percent annual rate of growth, the value of your investment will go up to $146,000. As rent increases for those who lease a home, your payments (with a fixed-rate mortgage) will remain constant for the life of your mortgage, and the value of your home increases as you build up equity.

Sequoits' simmer in summer of success

By STEVE PETERSON Staff Reporter

After 24 games and three postseason victories, Antioch High baseball coach Paul Petty believes the 1998 summer season was successful.

"It served its purpose. We had two teams and we looked at all the kids. In a sense, we played the first four games of next season this summer," said Petty.

Senior Pat Straub at first base, Nick Kocinsky at third base and junior Jason Schuler at catcher could be leaders as Antioch hopes to make a habit of contending for the North Suburban Conference title.

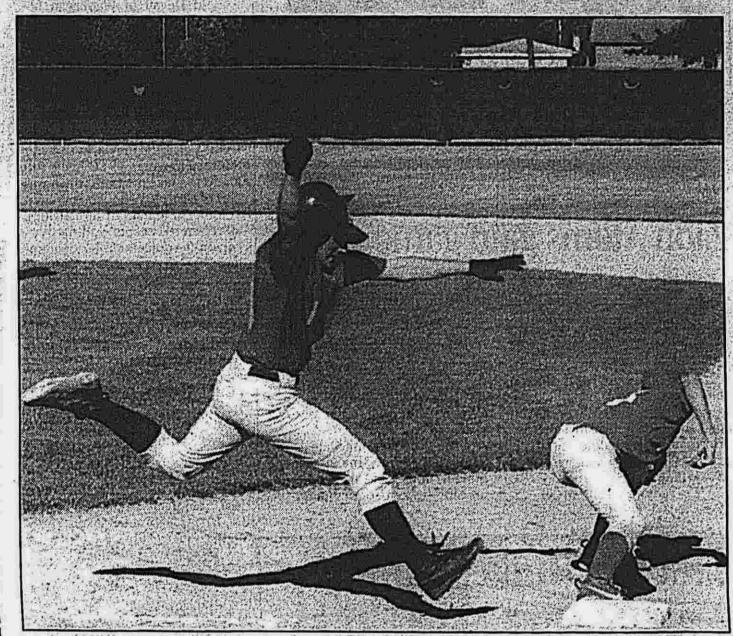

Senior Brett McCullom returned from honing his baseball skills in Florida under Ralph Bufano. He hit for the cycle in a regional tournament win over Cary-Grove.

Up and coming Sequoits could be Gary Spiller in center field along with Jim Richardson and junior Brady Schultz.

John Logan and Brad Groth patrolled second base.

"We feel we have four or five guys who can throw the ball consistently hard. Ryan Clutts is the key," said Petty.

Antioch ended the summer 13-9 overall. The Sequoits lost to fellow NSC early '99 favorite Mundelein in the Stevenson regional final. Mundelein went on to finish fourth in the Illinois High School Baseball Coaches Association summer tournament.

Conference Competition, DeKalb

The Antioch Waves Swim Team, lead by Head Coach Brian Murphy returned home from Conference competition in DeKalb, feeling very proud of the success of several of its swimmers. The Waves took 21 of its best swimmers to Conference after each of these swimmers took a 6th place or above at Divisional competition in Woodstock. There were 15 teams present at this Conference meet from all over northern Illinois with each team providing up to 115 swimmers. There were approximately 20 swimmers per event. Five of the 21 swimmers received medals for the events they were in. Those swimmers are:

Practice nears for Antioch Community High lady golfers

Antioch High's golf team has spent much of the summer finding time to challenge the area's golf courses

Only 10 days remain until the start of golf practice for the Sequoits and other teams on Aug. 17.

Aug. 17. Double - session practices during the entire first week will start at 7 a.m. and end at approximately 10 a.m. with the evening sessions beginning at 6 p.m. Spring Valley golf course is located in Salem, Wis. on Route 83 about three miles north of Antioch. In order to begin practice, each golfer must have a current physical exam on file, along with properly completed Athletic Clearance Form.

"They have been playing pretty well. They will be turning their cards in to see who made the '300 hole' club over the spring and summer. With the U.S. Women's Open in the Midwest, women's golf has caught fire," said ACHS coach Steve Wapon.

Wapon has emphasized that "no experience is necessary in order to try-out for golf at ACHS this fall. Besides an outstanding varsity schedule, we have a full JV schedule of meets that will be helpful for our younger golfers." Along with varsity tournaments at Barrington, Waukegan, and Champaign, the Sequoits will again host the Antioch Invitation at Hunter Country Club.

The JV linksters will compete in the Waukegan invite, as well as hosting the annual Antioch JV Quadrangular Tournament at Raymond Heights Golf Course. In the North Suburban Conference, the Sequoits will play a dual-meet schedule followed by a season-end Varsity-JV Conference Tournament-just prior to the start of the IHSA State Tournament.

Non conference opponents scheduled during the 1998 season will include: Barrington, Buffalo Grove, Deerfield, Evanston, Hersey, Kenosha Tremper, New Trier, Palatine, Waukegan and Westosha Central.

Wapon said the Sequoits will lose just one graduated senior, Abbey Clark, from last year's team, so it should be a senior dominated group.

Any girl interested in learning to play golf should plan to attend the practice sessions. There are also a limited number of starter golf club sets available for golfers to use during the season.

For details on practices, call Wapon at 395-1421.

Zion Atoms gain game's gold

The Zion Atoms Pee Wee AA ice Hockey team won a gold medal in the 15th annual Prairie State Games.

'All the members of the team played solid throughout their games," said Christin Larson, a team supporter. "They finished the Prairie State Games undefeated."

The Prairie State Games are an amateur sports festival in which approximately 7,000 athletes participate it is the largest amateur sports festival in Illinois

The games consist of 25 Olympic style sports in which chil dren may compete. The games are part of the Illinois Health and Sports Foundation and are open to Illinois residents of all ages.

The Zion Atoms represented Region #2 in the State of Illinois against other PeeWee ice hockey teams from throughout Illinois. Players at the PeeWee level range from 12 to 12 years-old.

The annual Prairie State games were held Friday, June 26 through Sunday, June 28 in Fairview Heights and throughout southwestern Illinois.

Wilmot Speedway sees Moulis win Outlaw

Dave Moulis of McHenry, scored the biggest win of his career by being crowned the "King of Wisconsin Sprint Car Racing" with an impressive win in the 30-lap J and I. Oil Interstates Racing Assn. Outlaw Sprint Car in front of a near capacity crowd at the Wilmot Speedway.

Ed Devall of Waukegan became the seventh different 20-lap IMCA modified feature winner. Wisconsin Fans For Auto Racing representative Wes Keith presented both feature winners with trophles, with Moulis also receiving the traditional crown and trophy sponsored by CJW Distributing Miller Lite and J & I. Oll. A gigantic fireworks show by Sunset Fireworks of St. Louis followed the race program which was part of Historic Wilmot and Wilmot Volunteer Fireman's Day activities, all registered events with the Wisconsin Sesquicentennial Celebra-

"The car was really hooked up, even though there wasn't a lot of race track left out there," said Moulis, the current Star Trac Series pointleader who earned a $3,000 first prize for the win. "My crew did a great job setting up the car. Traffic made it a little tricky at the end, and I actually saw John (Haeni) get past Mike (Frost) for second, so I knew he was coming on strong. This is a great win."

"The crew had my car set up great, and I guess I just ran out of laps," said Haeni, who started 18th in the 20-car feature field. "I'm really happy with our finish and placing second to Dave is definitely no disgrace."

"My car was hooked up on the bottom, and I couldn't get it to do anything up top," said Frost. "We've been struggling trying to figure this car out. Third is great when you have been struggling as much as we have." Frost took the initial lead from the pole. Moulis shot to the outside on lap five, overtaking the point. The only caution of the main came on lap nine when Kurt Winker spun in turn three. On lap 17, Haeni worked past Frost into runnerup. Moulis, who had opened a full straightaway lead, was able to stay in front to the checkered despite encountering lots of traffic in the final 10 laps. Haeni settled for second. Frost third. Jim Walkanoff Ir. had a career best fourth. Todd Daun came from 17th starting spot to finish fifth. Tony Engels sixth. Todd Hepfner came from 19th to seventh. Tommy Sexton was eighth. Winker came back from starting at the rear following his spin to finish 10th.

"We finally got everything together, said Devall, the defending IMCA modified champion. "I have to thank my father-in-law, Ken Sawusch, my dad, my wife, Lisa and all of our crew. The car really ran well. I wasn't sure if I would ever get to victory lane this year. The motor ran great and the chassis was right on."

Chuck Ostergaard took the early lead in the IMCA main. A series of cautions on laps two through five, coupled with some aborted restarts slowed the race progress. One of the yellows included a spin by Ostergaard while leading, turning the lead over to Jimmy Joe Urbanik. Devall worked in front on lap 13 with the caution waving two circuits later for a final time when Urbanik and Rob Olson tangled in turn three while running second and third, respectively. Devall stuck to his inside line holding off a late charge from runnerup Jay Crichton. Dave Holden was third. Lee Tibbitts fourth. Bob. Tellefsen fifth.

Ancient art form of Mehndi finds revival in temporary body art ike the look of tattoos but not ready to commit for a lifetime?

Mehndi, an ancient ritual of dying the skin with a paste made from * ground henna plant, doesn't require a permanent commitment.

Mehndi has become popular with the stars and is filtering down to the masses.

Madonna, Rosie O'Donnell and Sting are among those who have publicly shown off their Mehndi tattoos.

Now Lake County can jump on Jacci Christenson, of Bristol, Wis., has been offering Mehndi tattoos at her mother's Libertyville salon "A Total Look" for six months.

She has mastered the art of Mehndi and will decorate "basically any part of the body (within reason)."

The only restrictions she has on her designs are no gang signs and nothing drug related. Some of the more popular places on the body for Mehndi are ankles, and wrists.

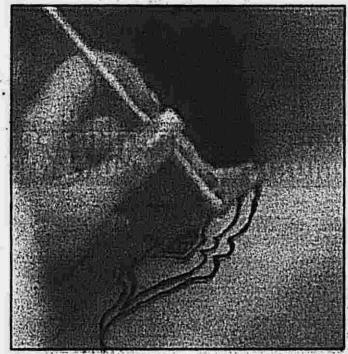

The process of applying Mehndi looks simple but requires artistic skill.

The paste is placed on the skin in ornate designs which take from 10-15 minutes to apply for a small design.

After the henna dries for several hours and is washed off, a stain is left on the skin. The color varies with each person and may range from bronze to burgundy.

Many people call Christenson curious about what Mehndi is.

"They've heard of it but they're afraid it hurts. I think that's the biggest S - 12 A 15 A Certain parts of the body will hold the stain longer than others. The palms of the hand are the best place for staining and usually will hold a stain for three weeks.

Because the stain only lasts from one to three weeks and the price is affordable starting around $5 for a design, Mehndi is a fun way to express yourself without the permanence of a tattoo.

"Traditionally it's from India. They use it for celebrations throughout the year. Mostly it's known for wedding celebrations," explained Christenson. "The Bride and Groom are ornate on their whole body. Their hands, forearms, their feet up to their knees. It's a ritual they do the day before, leading up to the ceremony."

The designs have meanings such as happiness, fertility and love, she explained, leafing through a book containing drawings of de-

Christenson is a nail artist and floral designer giving her the artistic background to draw the Mehndi designs.

She had considered learning how to create the designs for a few years. When her mother approached her about offering Mehndi services in the salon, she agreed it would be fun.

Christenson took it upon herself to learn the art. She attended a beauty show and stopped at every distributor booth selling henna

Training videos, information pamphlets and practice got her started on the art.

According to Christenson, the mixing of the henna to make a paste is the most important part of the learning process. The goal is to end up with a paste the consistency of

"You've got to know how to mix the Mehndi correctly because that is what is going to cause the stain to last the longest. That's what it really comes down to, wanting that staining to last as long as possible," she said.

After experimenting with different products, she chose one that comes with packets of herbs which are mixed into the powder and blended with tea and water. After the henna is mixed, it cures for 24 hours in the refrigerator.

Christenson uses a tube, with a metal tip, similar to a pastry bag, to apply the henna to the skin. It's very similar to icing a cake.

Very skilled Mehndi artists are able to apply the paste with wood sticks. This is the traditional process used in India which results in very ornate fine lines.

Christenson uses designs from books and adds her own flair. She is talented enough to copy designs brought in by customers.

A customer recently brought in a cartoon of a cow which Christenson copied onto her leg. Although

The customer liked it so much she came back for a Mehndi tattoo of Woodstock from the Peanuts comic strip. She is going to get a tattoo of her dog in the future.

Often customers will have a Mehndi design painted on before they get a permanent tattoo to give themselves an idea of what it will look like.

The clients on average range from 17 to 30-years-old. Many come in for designs prior to a vaca-

Most of the customers are women but she has tattoped five male clients.

"One man came in and I did a design all the way around his neck. He was thinking about getting a tattoo," she said.

Aries - March 21/April 20

You have a lot on your mind this week, Aries, but you can't let this distract you from your work. There's a job to be done, and people are counting on you to do it. Turn to loved ones if you need to talk. They always are willing to help you. Cancer plays an important role late in the week.

Taurus - April 21/May 21
Don't be stubborn when it comes to matters of the heart this week. You've finally met someone special; don't let a minor disagreement ruin a promising relationship. A close triend needs your help with a personal matter. Be there for him or her. He or she would do the same for you.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

You have to be patient when it comes to your career, Gemini. Don't get pushy, or you could lose out on an interesting op-portunity this week. Take some time for yourself during the weekend. Relax, and enjoy the peace and quiet. This is the perfect time to clear your head.

Cancer – June 22/July 22
Even though you enjoy the spotlight, try not to attract attention at work early in the week. A problem is building, and if you make a spectacle of yourself, people may think that you're involved. A friend needs your advice about a financial situation. Don't get involved with things that you know nothing about.

Leo - July 23/August 23
You're really in control of things this week, Leo. You know exactly what you want, and no one can stop you from getting it.
However, don't get greedy. Just because you're on a rol, it doesn't mean that you can take things that aren't yours. A loved one has some advice for you. Listen to him or her.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22
Don't worry about a family situation, Virgo. Things are going to work out — even though it doesn't look like they will early in the week. Loved ones have the problem under control. That special someone offers you a proposition. Be wary. Find out what's going on before you answer him or her. Aquarius plays a key role.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

Don't let a co-worker's actions upset you. He or she is just tying to solve a problem. A family triend needs a shoulder to cryon. Be supportive, and help him or her as much as you can Even though you don't know what to say, just being there is enough. Virgo is involved.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let an acqueintance force you to do something that you don't want to do. Stand your ground; don't be bullied. Your loved ones will respect you for this. You meet an interesting stranger late in the week. Get to know him or her better, because the attraction is mutual.

Segitterius - Nov 23/Dec 21

Make an effort to look at the bright side of things this week, Sagitarius. There is good and bad in every situation; focus on the good. If you don't, you're in for a stressful week. An acaintance needs to borrow money. Don't lend him or her anything unless you're sure that he or she is reliable.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20
A business rival gets the upper hand when it comes to an important project. Don't show your anger and disappointment, because it only will make you look bad in front of your superiors. That special someone has to go out of town. Don't sit around and sulk. Keep your chin up. Staying busy will get you through this concention. this separation.

Aquartus - Jan 21/Feb 18 When it comes to romance, look before you leap this week, Aquartus. Things aren't always as they seem. So, get the facts before getting involved with someone new. A loved one needs your help with a family matter. Be supportive, and do what you

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20

You're on the go this week, Pisces. Don't let minor details stall your momentum. You have a lot of things that you want to accomplish before Friday. With a little determina-tion, you can get everything done. Taurus plays a key role

United States Navy's Blue Angels headline the Chicago Air & Water Show

The United States Navy's premier demonstration team, the Blue Angels, will headline the 40th Annual Chicago Air & Water Show, presented in part by Shell Oil Company and the City of Chicago, announced Mayor Richard M. Daley. Centered at North Avenue Beach along Chicago's lakefront, the show will be held Aug. 22

& 23, with the water portion of the event beginning at 9 a.m., followed by the air show at 11

"We are delighted to have a flight team of this caliber headline the oldest and largest free admission air and water exhibition in the United States," said Mayor Daley. THE MANIE

Comprised of active duty U.S. Navy and Marine Corps pilots, the team has delighted audiences around the world and served as role models for young adults. Since 1946, the Blue Angels haveflown before millions of spectators.

The Blue Angels command F/A-18 Homets, high performance multi-mission strike fighters with the finest reliability, maintainability and safety records in the history of naval tactical aviation.

Their demonstrations consist of breath-taking series of alternating maneuvers by the famous

Blue Angel diamond and opposing solos, culminating with team's signature delta,

Other military performers include the Navy Leapfrogs; a U.S. Air Force C-130 Hercules; a U.S. Air Force C-141 Stairlifter; a U.S. Air Force F-117A

Stealth Fighter; a U.S. Air Force F-15E Eagle; an Illinois Air National Guard F-16 Falcon; and an Illinois Air National Guard KC-135. Additional military aircraft will be announced at a later date.

Internationally acclaimed civilian performers will also perform at the event, including Lima Lima, Don Johnson with Toyota Air Sports, Northern Lights 2000 Inc., John Mohr Barnstorming, Star Aerobatic Team and the Skytypers Squadron.

The Chicago Air & Water Show will also feature freestyle water craft exhibitions, including trick power skiers, trick wakeboarders, trick kneeboarders, barefoot skiers, super trick tubers, and spinning jet boats.

For more information on the Chicago Air & Water Show, call the Mayor's Office of Special Events at (312) 744-3315, TT/IDD (312) 744-2964. The Internet access code is http://www.ci.chi.il.us.

Sheridan Rd., in Waukegan. Call backs are scheduled from Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. 'The Meeting' will be directed by guest director Debrah Neal.

Needed are three black male actors to portray Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Malcolm X, and Rashad, Malcolm X's bodyguard. Production dates are Feb. 5, 6, 12, 13 at 8 p.m. and Feb. 7 and 14 at 3 p.m. There is a possibility of an additional run out performance.

'The Meeting' is about a fictitious meeting between the two great civil rights activists, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Malcolm X. It is poignant, witty, sometimes humorous, and catches the spirits of these two historic figures. Because the length of the play is just over one hour, additional materials will be used by the actors before the actual play.

Auditions will be by appointment only and actors are asked to call 360-4741 to set a time for their individual audition. Bowen Park Theatre Company is a professional, non-union, non-equity company. There is pay.

'Cabaret'

Step back into 1930s Germany and experience Berlin's most decadent cabaret. It's thought-provoking, poignant and provocative. This American musical classic ensures an outstanding evening in adult theatre. The show runs through Aug. 30 at Pheasant Run Resort's Theatre, 4051 E. Main St., St. Charles.

For show times, ticket/dinner prices, or reservations, call (630) 584-MEGA.

Tall Ships and Golf Too

DY JIM WARNKEN,

President, North Star Travel, Inc.

As an avid Great Lakes sailor, I had to be at Navy Pier last Saturday for the start of the Chicago to Mackinac Island race. Only as a spectator, though. I'm not quite eady to enter my 27ft C&C cruiser in the big race yet.

Since this was the 100 year celebration of the race, several Tall Ship Schooners were docked at the pier. One, The America, actually participated in the race.

Noticing the popularity of the Tall Ships, I went back to my office to research companies that offer sailings on them.

Windjammer is one such company. Over the years we have sent many happy vacationers on these somewhat unconventional sailings. I was, however, looking for an even more unique Tall Ship adventure. I found, ironically, a company called "Tall Ship Adventures" which has taken one of the most elegant of the remaining authentic tall ships, the "Sir Francis Drake" and restored her to meet the needs of the most discriminating tourist. All cabins are air conditioned and have a private bath and shower. The entire interior of the ship has been refitted in fine wood paneling and has been carpeted. There is a salon that features a full bar, video player and TV. To expect the luxury of today's cruise ships, however, would be to miss the point of a voyage on a vintage sailing ship. Instead of lunch in the dining room, the chef may quite likely prepare a picnic to be served on a secluded beach. Dinner may be a barbecue under the stars. You are not likely to encounter lines for dinner, since there will will be no more than 30 fun-loving sailmates and 14 crew members on the

The Sir Francis Drake sails the British Virgin Islands in the winter/spring and from St. Lucia in the summer/fall, overnights. Anchorage will be at pristine bays such as Cane Garden Bay, Cooper Island, Jost Van Dyke and Peter Island. Not much shopping or nightlife at these places. Snorkeling, swimming, beachcombing and diving will have to satisfy you during the day with gazing at, or dancing under, the

This fall Tall Ship Adventures is offering something unique for the golf enthusiast. Sailing from St. Lucia to Antigua, the Sir Francis Drake will visit five different tropical Caribbean golf courses on four different islands in one week. There will be plenty for the non-golfers to do too.

If you like sailing or just want an alternative to the mega cruise ships, a Tall Ship Adventure may be for you.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Save-A-Pet open house, reunion set

On Aug. 8 and 9, the 26th anniversary of Save-A-Pet will be observed by an Open House and Reunion at the shelter grounds on Fairfield Road in Grayslake. Everyone is welcome.

Save-A-Pet is a no-kill shelter for homeless dogs and cats. It started in Highland Park when Gertrude Maxwell rescued pets from the pound and persuaded her friends to keep them in their garages until a home could be found. From that system, they went to Rand Road in Palatine, where an old chicken farm was converted to a shelter with dog runs, cages, and offices.

The shelter is now located in rural Grayslake with a long list of volunteers, staff, and advisors. The Open House will be from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a variety of displays and events. There will be a blessing of the animals on Saturday at 2 p.m. by Rev. Williamson from Unity Church in Evanston.

'Fashions' benefits Assisi

The Sixth Annual Benefit Luncheon,
"Fashions with a Heart," will spotlight glamour with selections from Pierre Cardin, Bill Blass, Black Tie and others at the Crystal Lake Country Club on Saturday, Aug. 29.

The Assisi Animal Foundation presents this annual event to help support its award-winning no-kill shelter for companion animals in McHenry County.

Reservations are required for the champagne luncheon and can be made by calling Claire Denzler at (312) 951-3222. Individual tickets are $22.50 and tables for up to 10 persons can be reserved.

cocktails are at 11:30 a.m. and luncheon will be served at noon, followed by an informal modeling of stunning after-five designs, career clothes and cruise wear from major design houses.

Flower and Garden Show scheduled

The annual Flower and Garden Show hosted by the Gardeners of Central Lake County will be on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 29 and 30 at the Civic Center, 135 Church St., Libertyville. Entries will be accepted on Friday evening, Aug. 28, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. and Saturday morning from 7:30 to 10:30 a.m.

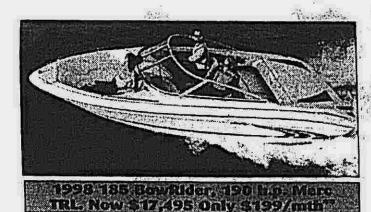

After the ribbons have been awarded, the show will be open to the entrants and the general public on Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m., and on Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. Awards will be given at 4 p.m. on Sunday. The public is invited. For entry forms, rules and tips on preparing plants, call Jerry at 566-6409.

An exhibition of black and white photographic portraits by Evanston photographer David Sutton wil be on display at Uncommon Ground, 1214 West Grace Street in Chicago. The exhibition, titled "A Friend of the Family," offers a fine-art look at people and their loyal pet companions, and features portraits of children and dogs.

The exhibition begins Sept. 9 and runs through Nov. 1. Hours are Sun.daythrough Thursday, 8 a.m.-11 p.m.; Friday & Saturday, 8 a.m.-midnight. For more information, call (773) 929-3680.

International art at CLC

Twenty-two paintings by artists from France, England and the United States are featured in the College of Lake County's first international exhibit, open through Aug. 14 in the Community Gallery of Art.

The artists represented in the show studied under Patrick Betaudier, a master painter and professor at "The Atelier Neo Medici," a classical painting studio founded and directed by Betaudier. Most of the paintings in the show have been brought to the United States from "The Atelier," which is located in Monflanquin, a 13th century medieval town in southwest France.

The gallery hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Mon. For information, call Steve Jones at 543-2240.

Coach Floyd? It doesn't have the right 'ring'

here are stranger things in heaven and earth than Jerry

But right now, I can't think of any. Krause's decision to hire the one coach whom Jordan specifically said he would not play for is either 1. Egotistical; 2. Stupid, or 3. He wants someone to fish with closer to home. The first

Whatever the reason is (and I'd like to meet the person who can make sense of it), the decision has already been made. The new Bulls coach is Pink Floyd. I mean Tim Floyd.

How to enrich your garden soil: try composting ne of the easiest, most efficlent and inexpensive ways to make your garden grow is by embellishing the soil by composting. To make your soil rich in nutrients it is important to add plenty of organic matter before planting anything. This alone will pay low maintenance dividends. Nutrient rich sources include decomposed leaves, compost, grass clippings, and manure. Peat moss will help soil absorb and retain moisture.

The best way to turn refuse into rich organic matter and nutrients for your garden start your own compost pile. Find a secluded, shady area on your property and build at least two composting enclosures out of wire, blocks, or planks. The size depends on your needs and availability of refuse. Before you construct your enclosures, check with your local energy-conservation groups. They sometimes offer good quality plastic compost bins for very little money.

To make a compost pile, alternate layers of vegetation with soil, shredded leaves, or even sawdust. Add grass clippings in thin layers, or they will mat down and start to smell. After the refuse in the compost enclosure reaches about 6 inches in depth, add a cup or two of limestone and cover it with an even 1 inch of soil. More refuse can then be layered on top of this until your sou sandwiches reach the top of the enclosure. Once a week or so, turn the pile with a pitchfork to allow decomposition to proceed at an even pace. If the weather is dry, you will need to water the pile occasionally to keep it moist. Compost is ready to use when it is dark brown, crumbly, and earthy smelling. If you turn your compost pile once a week and decomposition seems to be proceeding slowly, the ingredients may be too dry. A dry heap will not allow sufficient, bacterial action to result in perfect compost. So if rainwater is not sufficient, you must add moisture. Spray the pile with a hose until the contents are as wet as a sponge. Eventually the bacteria will break down the organic matter into a rich, dark brown humus that is completely free of odor but rich with benefits for all your plants.

To collect kitchen waste with no effort just keep a plastic container by your sink and slip castoffs into the container. Chop up large items, such as melon rinds. Just make sure you never use any animal products. At the end of the day, deposit the contents on the compost heap. Cover the kitchen waste with shredded leaves before adding the next layer.

If you have never composted before, please give it a try. Even on a small scale, it will provide you with excellent results.

deras to replace him, turning a one time bandito into a folk hero. Banderas' job is to take revenge on the flick's villain, played by Stuart Wilson, the same man who earlier imprisons Zorro 1.

Catherine Zeta Jones is the beautiful and volatile female interest, thought to be Wilson's daughter, but in reality is Hopkins' little girl who was kidnapped many years before.

What we have here is not a failure to communicate, but a delight in understanding. There are no slimy aliens, no flying buildings and atomic-level explosions, no saving of the world, just a tiny part of it. Just people challenging people who turn out to be the luckiest people!!!

With shades of Douglas Fairbanks and Tyrone Power, we liked this PG-13 rated film, giving it three out of five popcorn boxes.

Might we suggest that if you find "The Mask of Zorro," too slow, too dated, go see Bruce, Mel and Danny, and look up the file under X Enjoy a bit of libation, sit back and be mesmerized by Hopkins' and Banderas' fencing dexterity, Banderas' bedroom eyes with or without the mask, and appreciate Jones' beauty and dexterity, because old swashbucklers don't fade away, they just make more movies.

Art releases emotions in young victims alking into the conference room at A Safe Place/Lake County Crisis Center, you are immediately struck by the oversized children's artwork that lines the walls. Closer inspection reveals a world of emotion that reaches far beyond the sprays of vivid colors, a world no child should live in, of pain and fear, of families torn apart. And yet, there is also hope for the future, and hands joining together to share and seek the sunshine.

"Art," says children's counselor Esther Barmak, "gives the children permission to express their feelings in a safe way."

Children of both residents and non-residents of A Safe Place meet with counselors in individual sessions or in support groups. Art is one way that even the youngest victims of households experiencing domestic abuse can explain what is happening, what they are feeling.

"In the course of putting it on paper, they are actually releasing their feelings—it's out there, instead of in here (she points to her heart); on the paper, it cannot hurt," Barmak explains. "Especially when children have just come into shelter or are beginning group sessions, it is sometimes impossible to talk about these feelings.

"Art gives the children permission to express who they are and to be creative. And when I say, 'Tell me about your painting,' they begin to talk. The artwork gives me a more complete understanding of the total child. And when they are done, they can toss it, keep it, or give it away!"

The pieces hung on the walls by the children speak volumes to those who see them. Messages of relief:

Children's artwork displayed at A Safe Place gives an outlet to kids who are experiencing the pain of domestic violence. Art is one way that even the youngest victims of households experiencing domestic abuse can explain what is happening, what they are feeling.—Submitted photo

"I'm glad to be away from all the fighting...," of sadness: "I was feeling sad when my mom got hit," of hope: "It makes me feel like a bad person when I hit my brothers. I am going to try to stop hittin' 'em—I'll get help from somebody."

"'Oh, my gosh,' is the first reaction people who have never experienced a domestic violence situation have to the children's artwork," says Barmak. "Even those going through it (a domestic abuse situation) don't realize the impact on the kids. They think the children don't hear what is going on or don't understand. There is a profound impact on the kids."

Last year, children of residents and non-residents of A Safe Place received more than 3,200 hours of counseling. Through the prevention education program A Safe Place is taking to schools throughout Lake County, 6,592 students have learned about domestic violence and how to keep themselves safe, as well as to recognize "red flags" in dating relationships.

A Safe Place/Lake County Crisis Center provides court advocacy, individual and group counseling, children's counseling, prevention education programs and shelter at no cost to victims of domestic violence in Lake, McHenry and northern Cook counties. A 24-hour HELP LINE is available at 249-4450.

Managed care: Is it ready for reform?

A woman vacationing in Hawaii falls ill and is ordered home to Chicago for treatment by her HMO, which otherwise will not pay for her care. En route, she suffers a stroke and dies nine days later.

New management at his HMO requires an 81-year-old man with hypertension to accept a cheaper drug, and his blood pressure shoots up. Eventually, a local physician provides him a free supply of the original drug that the man cannot afford on his own.

After chemotherapy fails, a 13year old cancer patient's father is forced to launch a fundraising drive to get his son a bone marrow transplant that his HMO decided was not a "medical necessity."

And that's just what was report-

Congress appears ready to take action against managed care abuse this month. Congressmen and senators across the nation, from both parties, have heard from the people they represent and they have heard far too many stories like these (from July 13, 1998 magazine). In some managed care plans, profits seem more important than the quality of services patients receive.

Doctors want our patients protected from managed care abuses, so we are urging Congress to pass a law that will attack the roots of the disease. So far, there is only one bill—the Patients' Bill of Rights (H.R. 3605 and S. 1890)—that will fix what can go wrong with managed care without reversing the progress we've made toward limiting the growth of health care costs.

Any bill Congress passes should protect your right to truthful and candid health care by banning insurance gag clauses and practices. It should uphold your right to know all the details of your plan and its policies. It should establish your right to an external, independent review of your case when you have been denied a medical procedure. It should assure you the right to get emergency services when you reasonably believe you need them.

Most importantly, a reform bill must close the loophole in federal law that denies 125 million Americans the right to hold their health plans accountable and liable for the decisions plans make to deny care. It's time the health insurance business had to live up to the same standards of consumer protection the law provides for virtually every other industry.

Health insurance is ready for reform. A TIME/CNN poll found 76 percent of Americans want health care reform to be high priority for congress. Between 63 and 79 percent support specific reforms like those in the patients' Bill of rights.

Another poll found 67 percent willing to spend more for patient protections. Fortunately, the amount need will be minimal. Independent studies by the Lewin Group, Priced Waterhouse, Coopers and Lybrand, and others, show that patient protections are very affordable.

Most items add no more reform just don't add up.

Doctors just don't hear managed care abuse stories, we live them right along with our patients. Many times, a doctor's advocacy effort is all that keeps a patient's managed care problem from becoming as dramatic as the ones that make national news. We would rather be fighting disease than insurance bureaucrats and our patients need to be concentrating on recovery rather than reimbursement. It's time for managed care reform.—By Richard A. Geline, M.D., President, Illinois State Medical Society

LeFever earns certification

Molly J. D. LeFever, Pharm. D. (Waukegan) recently earned certification as a Board Certified Pharmacotherapy Specialist (B.C.P.S.) from the Board of Pharmaceutical Specialties, Washington, D.C.

This certification indicates Dr. LeFever's high level of education, training and experience and is pharmacy's highest credential in the area of pharmacotherapy (the treatment of disease by means of drugs). Fifty-four percent of the pharmacists sitting for the exam in December, 1997, achieved a passing score.

Only 1,266 pharmacists nationwide have achieved B.C.P.S. certification since 1991. Dr. LeFever has been pharmacy clinical coordinator at Victory Memorial Hospital since ear Dr. Singer, We live in an area in which there is a lot of wildlife and I have seen my children as well as other children become curious about the animals. I have seen other kids in our neighborhood cause problems for animals like frogs. My children do not bother these animals, but I would like to see if maybe there is a good way to present this wildlife to our children so that they learn about them and don't try to hurt them. M.T.

Teaching children to respect animals

Dear M.T.

All kids are curious about things they have never seen at a close distance before. As a person who loves animals, I have a definite perspective on this which I think is imperative for all parents to teach their children about animals, whether wild or domestic.

I have also seen kids hurt animals out of both curiosity going too far, and the lack of understanding of anothers' perspective. It is my opinion that many parents feel that a child's attitude toward animals just develops on its own. I am here to tell you that it doesn't.

PARENT'S PLACE

We need to teach our kids respect and compassion for those weaker and smaller than us through example and discussion. We also need to teach them that sometimes even the smallest of creatures can have a doozie of a defense system and conditions such as Rabies (although I understand that recently, there haven't been any cases reported,) and/or Salmonella.

There are two important areas that are good to teach. These are: respect of animals and protection are deserving of their own space and prevention of harm. When a child becomes too rough with a domestic animal such as a dog or a cat, it is a great time to explain to the child what that would feel like to the animal. Helping a child to take the animals' perspective helps to develop a sense of empathy and compassion.

All animals, wild and domestic,

I have seen children purposely set out to hurt animals. Believe me, these children have not been taught the opposite. If taught young enough, these kinds of behaviors can be avoided.

Certainly, kids should be taught that if they are having a bad time or a problem, it is not appropriate to take it out on something smaller or weaker. Teaching our kids this, helps both the kids and the animals. I have also seen children get curious and go too far and then feel miserable afterwards. Teach them first and avoid this later.

From the time children are very young, I recommend that we teach them to be respectful of creatures we should not be near. Wildlife can be cute and cuddly looking, but it is wild. We should make sure to point out to our kids what the animal is and help them understand that it deserves our leaving it alone to do what it does naturally. Even if it is within a couple feet of us. We don't want to scare the daylights out of our kids about animals, however, teaching a healthy distance to prevent bites or other problems is important.

This is also true of domestic animals. There are thousands of dog bites each and every year. You can never really predict what is going on in the mind of an animal you don't know. Our kids need to hear this more than once and watch to keep that distance. It's good to teach our kids to ask the pet's owner if they can pet that animal or not first.

I would actually make a project out of this for the young ones. Take a walk around your neighborhood with your children and have them identify the names of animals and whether they think they're wild or home animals. When they identify what they are, ask them to then tell you how to react to them. You will, of course, help them along the way to understand the distance, space, boundaries and rules of dealing with these animals.

You'll also help them to understand that these are living things with families of their own and if they get hurt, they cannot see or be with their families anymore. Many times, this personalizing of the animals' situation is all it takes for a child's natural nurture tendencies to surface and understanding to become complete.

You have a wonderful opportunity to create some marvelous learning for your kids!

Groups needed to provide lunches and supplies to homeless

With the PADS (Public Action to Deliver Shelter) emergency overnight shelters in Lake County closed until October 1, Connection Resource Services, Inc. is seeking more volunteer groups to help provide lunches and other supplies for homeless individuals during the summer.

Each weekday from 8 A.M to 4 P.M. the agency's PADS + Resource Center program provides individual counseling and referral assistance to homeless individuals in Lake County. They also provide access to laundry, shower, restroom, telephone, mail, and storage facilities.

Executive Directory May Reddick reports that an average of 50 individuals come to PADS+Resource Center at 3001
Green Bay Road in North Chicago
each weekday seeking the outreach help. Each person who comes for help is given a sack lunch containing one or two meat and cheese sandwiches, a piece of fruit, an individual snack of chips or pretzels, a wrapped dessert and a small drink
hov

These lunches may be the only meal some of theses individuals get during the day. Lunches are donated by church groups, organizations, corporations, clubs, individuals and families who put them together and deliver them to the PADS+Resource Center.

Other items that are in great demand over the summer include laundry supplies (detergent, fabric softener, and bleach), new men's underwear, new and used T-shirts, fast food gift certificates, grocery store "food only" gift certificates and drink boxes. Those interested in helping contact Marilyn Hlinak or Lynn Tracy at 689-4357 ext. 103 for details or to schedule a specific day to deliver lunches.

Massage therapist rubs people the right way

As our fast-paced, uptight, stressed-out lifestyle continues to accelerate, an old therapy is coming to the forefront in a new light. Since ancient times, massage has been an effective means of relaxation for both the muscles and the mind. Casting aside the misleading and unsavory images of massage "parlors" of the past, professional massage therapy has proven itself to be beneficial not only to reduce stress, but to prevent sports injury and to promote the healing of sore muscles.

Donna Ostrander, a certified massage therapist in private practice, works in an area inside of Team Fitness located in Gurnee. She can actually feel knots of tension that cause pain in her clients' backs, shoulders and necks. Regular patrons also depend on the pressure from Ostrander's sensitive hands to alleviate the pressure of their hectic lives. The area that extends from the neck and shoulders down to the middle of the back is frequently referred to as the "stress triangle." This is the most common site for muscular tension, known well to anyone who has spent time hunched before a computer screen.

No matter what region of the body, the physiology of stress discomfort is the same. Toxins (lactic acid) build up in the muscles under stress and strain, causing ache. Massage increases circulation and flushes out the toxins. Ostrander's specialty is neuromuscular therapy, which is more specific to problem areas. She can also give clients instruction in somatic movements which they can do themselves at home for additional relief.

Lower back pain is another common area of complaint. Donna herself is no stranger to the agony of a bad back. Working as a respiratory therapist at Victory Hospital in Waukegan for 25 years,

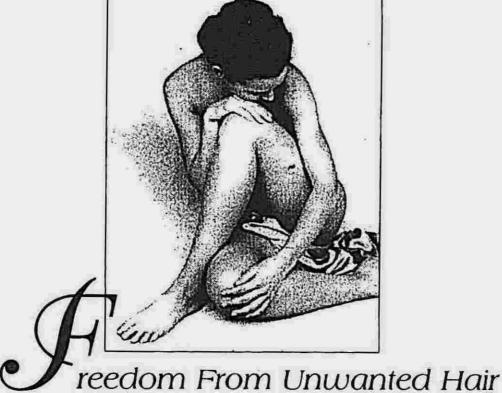

Ostrander began to find it difficult just to get out of bed in the morning due to chronic back pain.
After years of treatments ranging from injections to bedrest, she finally experienced relief in the form of a combination of exercise and massage therapy. She was so amazed at the results she got from massage that she decided to work toward certification herself.

In addition to treating stress and injury, massage benefits sports enthusiasts as well, be they morning joggers or professional athletes. Before strenuous exercise, massage loosens muscles and increases circulation, hence reducing the chances of muscular pulls and tears, as well as cramping and spasms. Post exercise massage helps to rid the body of the toxins which cause heavily worked muscles to ache. Massage also helps reduce soreness in problem areas such as the calf, groin, hamstring and back, the most common areas for sports injuries. Just like physical therapy, doctors are now also prescribing massage to soothe what ails and some insurance companies are even picking up the tab.

Ostrander believes that atmos; phere contributes to the overall massage experience. Using soft lights, relaxing music, lavender candles, comfy blankets and soothing body lotions, her objective is to achieve total relaxation.

Ostrander encourages everyone to substitute massage for those unhealthy stress relievers such as cigarettes and alcohol. She remarks, "It's so invigorating that it can increase a person's productivity. Massage actually allows you to think clearer, and we all need that, don't

Lakeland Newspapers wins 11 state press awards

Lakeland Newspapers was recently named a multi-award winner in the Illinois Press Association's annual newspaper contest.

The staff of Lakeland Newspapers, part of Lakeland Publishers Inc., was honored with 11 awards in 10 different categories. The IPA does not divulge the winning places of contest until its annual convention, held this year on Oct.

8 and 9, in Springfield.

Lakeland had two winners in the agriculture/business reporting category. Staff reporter Kenneth Patchen was honored for his story entitled, "Farm home beats reaper," about the Bonner Farm in Lake Villa while staff reporter Elizabeth Eaken was honored for her story entitled, "Raspberry preserves," about the Glunz raspberry farm in Grayslake.

Lakeland reporters Jason J. King and Leon Filas were honored for their story entitled, "LCHS English teacher fired." Filas was also honored in the feature story category for his profile of Fox Lake mayor Jim Pappas entitled, "Executive orders."

Sports editor Brendan O'Neill was honored in the sports story category for his piece entitled, "Mr. 900." O'Neill and Filas were also honored in the sports column category for the feature, "In the trenches."

Lakeland staff photographer Sandy Bressner was honored in the feature photography category.

Lakeland columnist Donna Abear was honored, again, in the original column category for her "Life's a Bear" column while Lakeland cartoonist Tom Beck was honored for his editorial cartoons.

Lakeland was also honored for newspaper design and for its lifestyle section known as Lakelife.

Lakeland Newspapers was awarded eight awards in last year's state press association contest.

This year's entries were judged by members of the Wisconsin State Press Association.

Learning about nature first hand

Summer youth program takes advantage of county's forest preserves

By LESLIE PIOTROWSKI Staff Reporter

Waukegan youth Robert Chavez, 16, has had a unique experience this summer. As a participant of Lake County Forest Preserve's Youth Conservation Corps, he spent several hours each day surrounded by trees and nature, and learned good work habits and the value of team work.

"I learned to work as a team with my crew," he said. "We built and painted fences and benches."

Working in the Lakewood Forest Preserve in Wauconda, Chavez also learned about the environment. "We learned about trees and wildlife and to identify poisonous plants," he said.

Chavez is among 58 high school students who had the opportunity to participate in a youth program cosponsored by the Lake County Forest Preserves, the Private Industry Council and Allendale Association.

The program's goal was to help young people learn about the world of work and job expectations. Participants also received 40 hours of environmental education training.

Over a two-month period, the students completed a 1,500-foot pasture fence for an equestrian rangers' stable, put up a 500-foot split rail fence, completed a one and a half-mile wood chip trail, and helped clean up of the Des Plaines River. This year's program ended July 31.

"I believe in this program," said

Bob McCammon, superintendent of support operations for the Lake County Forest Preserves. "It takes youth and puts them in an environment where they learn to work and gain social skills that help make them productive in later life. We're developing leaders for the 21st century."

NIU/CLC links up for students

By LEE FILAS Staff Reporter

Students attending the College of Lake County with plans on transferring to Northern Illinois University are going to find their lives a little easier this semester

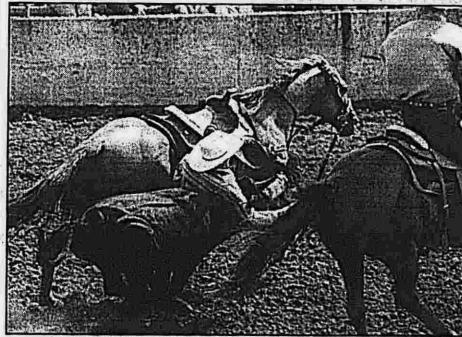

In joint cooperation between CLC and NIU, the schools announced this week that a transfer program has been set up through both schools, giving students a chance to transfer their college credits with little effort from CLC to NIU.

According to Lyla MacLean, media relations coordinator for CLC, the program is designed to make transferring schools easier for students currently attending CLC with plans on transferring to NIU. Also, it would allow students to avoid taking classes that do not transfer from one school to another.

"Students will receive full credit for classes at CLC, then will easily move on to NIU as a junior," MacLean said. "The students here

Dominican University expands ASAP program

Dominican University, formerly Rosary College, continues to meet the needs of working adults by expanding its Adult Scholars Accelerated Program to four locations: Northbrook, Grayslake, Waukegan and the main campus in River Forest.

"ASAP is designed for adults who live busy complicated lives," said Bryan J. Watkins, executive director of the Institute for Adult Learning, which administers the adult scholars accelerated program. "Due to our changing lifestyles, adults are continually challenged by time, geography and demands of the workplace. To help adults meet these challenges our classes are offered at convenient locations in an accelerated five-week format. Classes begin nine times a year so that a last-minute project at work will not cause you to lose an entire semester."

In an effort to offer assistance and service to adult students, Dominican has a staff of experienced professionals based at the Northbrook site.

"We want to make the process of completing their education as seamless as possible for all of our adult students." Watkins said.

The program also recognizes that adults learn in different ways and that learning outside the classroom can be as traditional learning. As a result, students can obtain academic credit for life experiences.

Classes are held in the evening. Weekend classes are expected to be added in the near future.

Adult students want to obtain skills that they can use at work the very next day," Watkins said. "Our focus is to provide them with the skills and knowledge to support them in their growth and development."

For further information or to attend an upcoming information session, call Dominican University at 562-8810 or email them at asapdu@email.dom.edu. The next information sessions are Aug. 10 in Grayslake, Aug. 12 in Waukegan and Aug. 17 in Northbrook. The Grayslake and Waukegan dates will be held at the College of Lake County and all information sessions begin at 6 p.m.

The agreement would help provide CLC students pursue bachelor degrees in the future.

"There would be two applications sent out, one to CLC while the other application would be sent out to NIU," MacLean said. "All students accepted into the program will receive notice from both schools and would have the benefit of the admissions program at NIU, plus a personal counselor, helping them enroll in classes that will transfer."

Other benefits include: students would have full access to NIU registration, an advisor to help with the dual admissions and help working out their academic schedules to accommodate both schools.

This is the second program of it's kind at CLC. A transfer program with Roosevelt University in Chicago was put into place in January. However, MacLean expects other programs like this one to be set up through the college in the future.

"I would think that this will be expanded in the future," MacLean said. "This is a good opportunity for students to make the transfer smoother to NIU."

A DIGEST OF STORIES MAKING HEADLINES THROUGHOUT OUR REGION

State grants $5.4 million to ACHS Antioch—Antioch Community High School officials have received a grant of $5.4 million from the State of Illinois.

The additional millions from the Illinois Capital Development Board will permit ACHS officials to expand modernization plans beyond that presently authorized and under construction.

ACHS has undertaken its own modernization program with $8 million it raised through CertificatPes of Participation. The state grant is an additional amount that creates more than $13 million for local school improvements,

"It's great news," said Phillip Delany, president of the Board of Education. "The district has been able to invest over $13 million in improving its facilities and to do it without having to ask the local property owners for an increase in taxes."

The $5.4 million of new state funds will upgrade the auditorium, remodel old science labs, undertake life safety projects, improve fine arts facilities and facility planning documents.

In June, ACHS officials started their planned $8.0 million modernization project, now evident at the high school. The modernization will add new classrooms, a new library, new science, family, consumer science, and applied technology laboratories, a new guidance and counseling center, and new administrative offices.

County Fair sets attendance record

Grayslake-Construction around the Lake County Fairgrounds did not slow a record attendance for the 70th Lake County Fair.

Crowds of better than 50,000 pushed the total to 250,193 for the Fair, which concluded Aug. 2. The 58,686 who attended Saturday set a record at the Grayslake site.

"I point to three factors. It was ideal weather. There is an increase in population in Lake County and our public relations and advertising. We try hard to get the type of attractions people want," Mary Gunia, executive secretary of the Fair Association, said.

The half-day of Tuesday drew 22,650 persons; 38,264 attended Wednesday; 42,691 came Thursday and 38,704 on Fri-

Fair officials may decide to make Tuesday a full day instead of a half-day for next year, she said.

"Without the extra day, we still would have had a record.

It will be discussed, but my first reaction is we will stay with it.

We had an excellent day," David Bonner, president of the Lake County Fair Board, said.

New principal takes over at Grant

Fox Lake—With a willingness to tackle any task, the era of John P. Donnellan as Grant Community High School princi-

"I wish the school year started tomorrow," Donnellan said. "This is a homecoming of sorts to me and I can't wait to get started."

Donnellan, former principal of Wauconda Middle School District 118, brings many years of school administration to Grant High School.

Donnellan spent four years as assistant principal of Hampshire Middle and High School before taking over the reigns of Wauconda Middle School. He also taught five years at Jacobs High School in Huntley and two years as a special education supervisor at Carpentersville Community High

According to Donnellan, the position of principal was created at Grant High School to free up the superintendent. The principal will handle the every day running of Grant, while the superintendent will focus on running the school district.

"My position is a more operational position of Grant," Donnellan said. "I will be handling attendance, discipline, articulation with the feeder schools and the everyday running of Grant, freeing Dr. Benedetti up to focus more on the school district."

"He's an energetic person," said Dr. John Benedetti, superintendent of Grant High School. "He is willing to tackle any tasks and responsibilities that come to him at Grant."

Buckinghams set to rock Lindenfest

Undenhurst-Lindenfest is a four day festival of pageants, parades, entertainment, music, food, and enjoyment of the feeling of living in a small town.

Held on the Village Hall grounds from Thursday evening,

Aug. 13 to Sunday, Aug. 16, Lindenfest is a rich mixture of family fun regardless of age or interests.

This is especially symbolized by the presence of the multigenerational entertainment offered by The Buckinghams. They were most nationally prominent from 1965 to 1970. The Buckinghams managed to have 5 top 10 records, a couple of number one hits, and was the most listened to band in 1967.

'Our show is primarily a '60s show," said Carl Giammarese, leader of the group. "We do all our songs and all our hits."

The group also provides excursions into the music catalogue of that time period. There is a Beatles medley, a Motown medley, and a tribute to the music of the "Happy Together Tour," a famous and popular review that toured a few years ago with the Turtles, the Grass Roots, Gary Lewis and the Playboys, and Tommy James and the Shondells.

"We do a little tribute to one of our favorite groups-Three Dog Night," Giammarese said.

Nick Fortuna, Tom Scheckel, Bob Abrams, and Bruce Soboroff join Giarnmarese for an enthusiastic performance, even after all these years.

County Fair not only festival in area

Park City—With competition from surrounding towns, Park City's second annual festival drew a steady crowd to Limbrenner Park.

In addition to the Lake County Fair, last weekend also featured Warren Township's ice cream social and a mobile home park party, all within a 10 mile radius.

"If you did not find a kind of festival you wanted to go see, then you are not a festival goer," Park City Mayor Rob Allen

The effort in Park City is organized by the Community Organized for Policing Solutions group. A D.J., games for kids, an area where adults could consume alcohol, all lasted until 10

It is to provide a recreational and social outlet and to give people a chance to meet the COPS group. Next year, we may have the festival later in August," Allen said.

One possible addition being considered is fireworks. Another summer ritual besides festivals is the purchase of vehicle stickers. City officials are making them available at various sites. Before officials visit, flyers are sent to residents without city stickers on their vehicles. One day brought sales of 50 city stickers. A computer glitch prevented the usual distribution of sticker renewal notices.

RLB celebrates National Night Out

Round Lake Beach-Even the rain clouds couldn't keep the people away.

Over 200 people came out of their homes to support Round Lake Beach's second annual National Night Out.

"It was a great event," said Ed Sindles, Round Lake Beach Police Chief after he walked the 2 miles until the end. "We had a lot of different cultures and people out of their homes, supporting this event and that's great."

National Night Out, sponsored by the federal government to demonstrate against crime, gangs, alcohol and drug abuse brought out all types of different age groups. Teens mixed with seniors and adults mixed with kids in a effort of solidarity with in the community.

"It was a good walk," said Ralph Davis, Mayor of Round Lake Beach said. "It was a little longer than last year, and more people cane out to show support."

Cardinal George visits parish

Mundelein—Cardinal Francis George will make a rare Lake County appearance Sunday, Aug. 9, at St. Mary-Fremont Center Church, located north on Route 60 at 22333 W. Erhart Rd., for the parish's 24th Annual Pork and Corn Roast.

George will say a special 10:30 a.m. outdoor Mass underneath a tent, and then be carried by horse and carriage onethird of a mile where he will bless 30 acres of property the church purchased for construction of a new church, offices and meeting spaces.

The Pork and Corn Roast will be held from 12-7 p.m., with servings of pork and corn from 1-3 p.m. Tickets are $8 for adults and $4 for children. Other food items will be sold throughout the day. More than 3,000 people are expected to attend.

Miss Wauconda 1998 crowned

Wauconda—The suspense at the end of the 1998 Miss Wauconda Pageant was at its height last week, as all three winners had the same first name. Usually when a contestant first name is called, the crowd goes wild, but on July 31, the crowd of 200 at the Concorde Banquets in Kildeer was silent. said Megan Thompson, the winner of the Miss Wauconda Pageant.

Meghan Glade, 18, was first runner-up, and Megan Konieczka, 18, was second runner-up, as well as Miss Congeniality. "They all call us the triplets," said Thompson, 17, a senior at Wauconda High School, who was second runner-up last year, and said she was surprised when her name was called as the winner.

"All the girls did a wonderful job, and I was very surprised that I had excelled over the rest of the girls," she said. By winning the pageant, Thompson received a $1,000 college scholarship from the Wauconda Chamber of Commerce, the pageant sponsor. Glade received a $750 college scholarship, and Konieczka received a $500 college scholarship.

Quilt raffle featured at festival

Lake VIIIa - For three years, The Bank Family Quilters have made a quilt that is donated by State Bank of The Lakes employees to the Central Baptist Children's Home in Lake Villa for their annual raffle.

This year's quilt raffle will occur August 29 on the lawn at the Central Baptist Children's Home. The children's home is hosting a multi-event, day-long Blast from the Past. It is a family-oriented celebration of old cars, children's fun events, an ice-cream social, and a Waukegan Symphony Orchestra concert by the lake.

Admission is charged for adults and children to attend the ice-cream social, the concert by the Waukegan Symphony Orchestra, and children's village. Adults are $8 and children under 6 are $3.

Untangling the task facing commissioners orest Preserve Commissioners are being unduly hard on themselves by agonizing over whether they should ticket the proceeds of a proposed bond referendum for development of existing preserves or expand the system with purchases from the available supply of open lands.

The quick answer is: do both.

Without appearing to be flippant, we hasten to remind commissioners that statutes spell out provisions for utilization of district land acquired with bond issue proceeds. At the same time, it is inarguable that public opinion is on the side of both continued preservation of open space and ways to make existing lands more accessible to the public.

What's the hand-wringing about? Part of it is posturing on the part of the elected officials to make sure the Forest Preserve board makes a case for reasoned and careful deliberation on spending propositions. Part of it is positioning. Utilization advocates have their favorite projects. Their having their say. Pro-growthers want to send a message to their backers that the commission isn't going pell mell into a buying binge of the county's rapidly diminishing supply of open space.

Commissioners have targeted April 13, 1999, for a referendum. The amount sought will be $55 million or close to that. Michael Fenelon, director of planning, has advanced a wish list of $29 million for land acquisition.

A tour July 31 of six preserves provided commissioners a first hand view of where improvements are needed. They visited Ft. Sheridan, Ryerson Woods, Fox River Forest Preserve near Barrington, Lakewood Forest Preserve near Wauconda, West Loop Trail near Volo, Bonner Farm near Lindenhurst and Rollins Savanna on the outskirts of Grayslake.

The savanna lies untouched. Commissioner Sandy Cole (R-Grayslake) says it's time to open it to the public. Some needs are pressing like a scenic ravine at Ft. Sheridan that is being destroyed by stormwater.

Forest Preserve Executive Director Steve Messerli estimates that $5 million alone is necessary to make the 260 acre former military space usable.

By the time spring rolls around, commissioners undoubtedly will have a comprehensive program worked out that includes both restoration, development and land acquisition. That makes sense and that's what the public wants. If it takes some rather unnecessary and at times silly political posturing and positioning to get there, sobeit.

High, dry ground sought for station onfronted with flood plain regulations in modernizing the current police station, Gurnee officials are following an expeditious path. They're going to abandon current facilities and relocate to ground that's high and dry to build a new state-of-the art police headquarters.

Would builders and developers be so practical in dealing with land that's prone to flooding. The Gurnee police station was marooned in the "Great Flood" of 1986. Regular operations and communications had to be relocated. Gurnee Mayor Dick Welton observed that he never wants to see that happen again. Trustee Tom Chamberlain opined that the village would look "pretty stupid" caught in the snare of another high water predicament.

Relocation to a safer site will involved building costs that could range between $5 and $10 million, according to Police Chief Robert Jones. This is considerably more than remaining at the present site, which is susceptible to the ravages of the Des Plaines River. A majority of village officials, however, feel the additional cost will be money well spent.

One thing the Village of Gurnee will avoid by taking the high road will be oodles of red tape involved in building in or near the flood plain. For one thing, Gurnee officials won't have to deal with the Army Corps of Engineers which has the last word on what goes on in the flood plain and where it is.

Question: Officialdom wisely avoids flood plain construction.

Why do they let developers push building plans that test flooding possibilities?

VIEWPOINT

Horse country's biggest attraction

f all the places to go and things to do around these parts, a handful qualify as world class. One of them is the Temple Farm Lipizzan Show in Wadsworth.

Twice weekly during summer months, at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday and 1 p.m. Sunday, the famed horses and colorful riders perform intricate, centuries-old maneuvers in a setting that can only be described as idyllic. George Williams, director of riding, is a master showman. A curving drive off Wadsworth Rd. takes visitors to an ample parking lot adjoining the stable area and outdoor performance arena. Talk about a day in the country.

Erika and John, with their grandparents and great-grandmother in tow, took in the mid-week performance on a sun-drenched morning. Temperatures were high enough to insure that the shady seats in stands surrounding three quarters of the performance arena were filled first. Handicapped persons enjoyed the comfort of folding chairs set up under trees lining the open side.

An excellent sound system provides symphonic music as a backdrop and amplification for a pleasant male voice with a distinct tinge of Austrian accent. Every number is explained in detail. Visitors are given the history of how the late steel mogul, Temple Smith, and his wife imported the regal horses from Europe to establish a breeding center in Lake County. Today, the Temple Farms facility is the largest in the world devoted to the rare breed.

A mare that foaled rare twins in April, a filly and a colt, has a special spot in the show this year to show off her offspring. The trio easily stole the show, if that is possible for the four-footed performers that un-

Temple Farms provides a tent stocked with souvenirs and refreshments. Visitors are invited to tour the stables after the show. You could make virtually a day of the visit, arriving early, enjoy lunch after the hour and a half show and then leisurely stroll through the stables.

Adult admission is $14. Seniors are charged $12. Children under four are admitted free at this truly world class attraction, only a short distance from home for Lake County residents.

Cemetery pinched

Even cemeteries feel the sting of growth and development pangs in a go-go county like Lake. Bill McNeal, sexton of the more than 100-year-old Avon Cemetery, estimates current capacity will be reached within the next decade.

Attempts to acquire additional land failed because developers have acquired all the vacant land in the vicinity of the cemetery located on Rte. 83 between Grayslake and Round Lake Beach.

"They wouldn't even sell us five acres," lamented McNeal. Avon Cemetery is the resting place of many mid-county pioneers.

Thistle hater

This time of year the beady eyes of your faithful scribe never fail to take in one of the disgusting sights of summer, hardy thistle growth that is ready to explode thousands of cottony seedlets into the air. One of the worst stands of thistle is along Rte. 45 adjacent to the environmentally correct Prairie Crossing community.

Thistle officially is a noxious weed. Years ago, townships used public monies to eradicate the nasty growth. A Township thistle commissioner was empowered to enforce anti-thistle statutes, which probably still are on the books, but no longer heeded. Much to the chagrin of thistle-hating columnists.

Welcome DePaul

DePaul University is the latest degree granting institution to offer Lake County college students local facilities. DePaul will start classes Sept. 9 at its new Lake Forest site, 150 W. Field Dr., near Rte. 60 and I-94.

Increased taxes?

Lake Zurich has jumped on the home rule band wagon. Trustees are expected to take advantage of the 25,000 population benchmark and obtain broader powers by local ordinance.

Towns under 25,000 must get voter approval. Round Lake Beach officials are working feverishly to grow their village to reach the 25,000 enabling point. Basically, home rule gives the local council blank check taxing authority. The remainder of the so-called advantages are window dressing.

Tollway must be accountable to public

SEEING

THROUGH

here has been enough scandal uncovered within the Illinois State Toll Highway Authority that taxpayers must demand reform of the system. I believe that accountability will never happen until the Authority becomes a unit of state government, its budget scrutinized by the state legislature, and all of its activities answerable to the taxpayers.

When the tollway agency was created back in 1953, there was a legitimate reason to make it a quasipublic agency. Under the "old" Illinois constitution, there were limited debt restrictions, so the bonding scheme proposed to finance the tollways through toll collections didn't affect the state's debt. After the passage of the 1970 Constitution, there was no need for such creative financing mechanisms, and there is no rhyme or reason that an agency that collects almost $1 million a day, not be a unit of government with total scrutiny by elected lawmakers.

The hierarchy of the Tollway Authority likes to make us believe that such a changeover can't be done. They tell us that because current bonds are outstanding, any change would put bondholders at jeopardy. Who are they kidding? Refinancing bonds are done every day and since when wouldn't bondholders be comfortable knowing that their bonds are backed by the full faith and credit of the state of Illinois.

So, there is only one logical conclusion to why the "powers-that-be" rebel against a changeover of the Illinois Tollway system. They want to protect their own fiefdom is crushed and the Tollway Authority is answerable to the taxpayers.

Another thing that the legislature should do is have a direct hand in the toll-setting procedure. I remember when one of the executive directors, just before he left, was going to have imposed a toll increase across the board. I called him up and went wild letting him know that I wouldn't stand still for toll increases on toll highways that were actually paid for many years ago. He "changed his mind." It is easy for these tollway directors, as well as bureaucrats, to go for toll increases. They just want more and more revenue coming in so that they can continue their extravagant and wasteful ways. At least, if the legislature is involved in the process, there is a direct link with the taxpayers.

As long as we are discussing reform of the tollway system, a very important change ought to be in the way that we designate toll highways in the first place. In March of this year, the Chief of Communications ayor Frank Beatty of tiny Hebron in neighboring McHenry County was so anxious to see a fire-ravaged restaurant get back in business that he shoved aside a fault-finding building inspector and did the inspection himself. Mayor Beatty found only two infractions compared to 14 by the inspector who quit over policy differences. Village officials fast-tracked the opening by waiving water, sewer and annexation fees, and allowing owners to remodel without a building plan or blueprints. Sounds like enough wheeling and dealing in Hebron to put a Chicago alderman to shame.

Different 'Dem'

By campaigning in Lake County, Congressman Glenn Poshard already has stamped himself a "different Democrat" as far as local "Dems" are concerned.

Poshard made more stops here in one day than previous Democratic candidates did in 10 years. The gubernatorial candidate was at the county. Democratic picnic in. Waukegan, the county fair and a few other stops. U.S. Senators Carol Moseley-Braun and Dick Durbin never could find Lake County during their campaigns—except a few cocktail parties for fat cats in Highland Park.

Richardson: Going back to roots.

Depke: Feels welcome at twp. bash

Recruitment mode

A woman named Willard arrived at the July 28 Lindenhurst-Lake Villa Chamber of Commerce noon picnic ready to recruit. The lawn of the Central Children's Baptist Home was the location for the picnic, and Willard R. Helander, Lake County Clerk, spoke briefly to the 10 dozen people of the need for election judges.

Helander's search is not for the November, 1998 elections, but for the April, 1999 elections. "We want to make sure the polls are well staffed next spring."

"It's a great job; it's only two times a year," she told the group. She said, "Most judges are getting home by 7 and 8 o'clock." However, because of the early start, it is a long day, she warned them.

For untrained election judges who show up to work, the pay for the day is $70. It goes up to $100 if the person has gone through the training program. Those judges who help the night before the election receive $125. Judges who work outside their area will be paid $150. People willing to serve as an emergency judge, to fill-in where needed on election morning, receive an extra $25.

Festival visiting

Highlighted by the Lake County Fair, the end-of-summer means it is festival season. It is also an important time for politicians, out making the rounds.

At Warren Township's ice cream social to held to dedicate a new sand lot, in the span it took to eat one of the 25 cent hot dogs, one could meet:

Congressman Phil Crane, State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville); Lake County Clerk Willard Helander; and Lake County board member Al Westerman.

Robert Depke, for whom the township center was named just before he left office in 1996, also made a rare post-Lake County Board chairmanship appearance. Word was he even greeted Westerman, his replacement on the Lake County Board.

Some politicos even came with support staff, ready to tout their virtues to voters or media types with questions. Look for more visits during this weekend's Gurnee Days.

Golf: the game of a lifetime olf has been called "the game of a lifetime" because it's possible to play it skillfully long after the skills of other sports have drastically declined.

For example, the other day 77year-old Chuck Hawkins, a member of Spring Valley Country Club in Salem, Wis., north of Antioch, shot a 71 for 18 holes.

That's known as "shooting your age," or better, a golf feat as coveted as a hole-in-one. Chuck has done it more than 100 times. During the winter, in Florida, he shot a 69.

Chuck first "shot his age" at 68, when he fired a 66. By the time he was 73 he had accomplished the feat 73 times. "Then I quit counting," he says.

How does he maintain the skills of much younger players? By practicing almost every day and playing 18 holes about five times a week.

Hawkins is a well-known golf name in the Antioch-Salem area. Chuck's brother Fred, 75 years old, has been a professional tournament player over the past 51 years, first on the Professional Golfers Association (PGA) Tour and then on the Senior Tour.

The brothers learned their golf while growing up in the 1930s and 1940s. Their father and an uncle built the Antioch Country Club course in 1923 and the family members worked there.

As teen-agers, Chuck and Fred started a golf team at Antioch High School and later played for the University of Illinois. Fred was good enough to win lunior tournaments around the Chicago area and, in 1947 after the war, achieved his goal of joining the PGA Tour and making a living on it.

He had two tour victories and placed second an amazing 27 times, including a runner-up finish to Arnold Palmer in the 1958 Masters.

CORNER
Jerry Pfarr

It was a thrilling duel with Fred's chance to tie, a 25-foot downhill birdie putt on the last hole, hitting the cup but spinning out.

In 1956, Fred was the fourth highest money winner on the PGA Tour with $25,000. Fourth in earnings nowadays is worth a couple million.

Last year, Fred enjoyed the biggest single payday of his career while competing against other "Legends of Golf" in a Grand Champions tournament in South Carolina. He and partner Al Balding shot a bestball score of two-under-par 70. Next week, Fred will be playing in a Montreal event along with such famous old friends as Sam Snead, Bob Goalby, Doug Ford, Tommy Bolt and Doug Sanders.

The "Super Seniors" gather for tournaments several times a year and admiring golf fans pay to watch.

Chuck Hawkins could beat his kid brother during their high school years but never had the desire to become a pro. He was successful in the meatpacking business and then in farming.

Chuck now winters in Florida where he and Fred golf together often. Pred returns to the Antioch area regularly to play at Spring Valley with Chuck and a flock of other friends.

Who wins when the Hawkins brothers golf together now? "If he's off and I'm on, I can beat him," Chuck says. "But he's a better golfer."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Graham master of township tax spin

n a desperate effort to secure
Tax Bond Monies for his political Land Baron Open Space project Mr. Graham has repeatedly promised the taxpayers, who will pay the cost that will be incurred that he guarantees the same rate of .19 per $100 of equalized assessed valuation (EAV) on the taxpayers property.

Were Mr. Graham to keep this promise he automatically boxes himself into a corner whereby he cannot seek more than $37,000,000 in Bond funding since the interest rate increases for Bond issues in excess of $37,000,000 which in turn will increase the promised .19 rate.

Never does Mr. Graham admit to the taxpayers that with the inevitable interest charge the result of a $37,000,000 Bond issuance means the taxpayers must pay back $74,000,000.

In addition, Mr. Graham avoids telling the fact that the EAV has increased across the board approximately 60 percent since 1985 (the time of the initial Open Space Bond issue). This means at the same .19 rate taxpayers will be paying 60 percent more today for Open Space Bond indebtedness than they have been paying since 1985. An example is that on a property valued at $200,000 in 1985 the taxpayer paid $380 in additional taxes each year for 20 years (total $7,600).

Now for the same property an Open Space Bond issue at the SAME .19 rate, due to the increased EAV, the taxpayer would pay each year $608 for 20 more years. That adds up to a total additional taxation of $12,160.

With this amount of additional tax burden plus the inevitable additional tax increases for schools, libraries, Forest Preserve, etc. is it any wonder that retired families or those on a fixed income cannot continue to live and exist in Libertyville Township?

Another outrage perpetrated by the Libertyville township Open Space District was in crafting the Open Space Legislation to permit them to not tell the voters on a referendum ballot what amount of money in specific terms they are asking for. Instead the ballot requests they be permitted to secure

5 percent of the current EAV.

If a person were to stop on the sidewalk and question 50 Libertyville Township residents as to what the term "EAV" meant it is a good bet that almost none queried would respond with a correct answer. Therefore, how do they know what they are voting for on a ballot that has no dollar amount stated?

This ballot farce should be amended by the State Legislature.

SEEING: Tollway must be accountable to public of the Tollway Authority in a Letter to the Editor made a big point of the fact that the Illinois legislature, on July 2, 1992, in Senate Joint Resolution 14, approved the Route 53 Tollway project. To the uninitiated, it would sound as though such approval went through a very intensive legislative procedure.

A Senate Resolution, unlike a Senator Bill, receives very little scrutiny, often none. Bills have committee hearings where the public can testify, resolutions often, bypass committee. Bills are required constitutionally to have three readings in each house; resolutions are often adopted in a matter of seconds with little or no debate. I wasn't in the legislature when the Route 53 extension was approved, but the July 2 date tells me that it was probably the last act of the Spring Session when things sail through just before adjournment. So, the real point is that such a major issue, so very controversial with such a need for public input, and so very costly at least a billion dollars to construct, doesn't receive the legislative scrutiny that it deserves.

The more responsible way to designate legislative approval for a tollway ought to be by way of a Senate or House Bill, rather than by resolution. There again, the "tollway folks" soundly resist such a procedural change. They know how "easy" the present system is. All they have to do is satisfy the "four leaders" of the legislature and they are "home free." The public be damned.

I guess it would be too much to ask that the Illinois Tollway Authority be mandated to develop a plan to identify when certain segments of the tollway become freeways. After all, we do know that tollway users are basically commuters so they are being "double-taxed" with motor fuel taxes and toll box fees. Imagine how freely traffic would flow if some of the tollways were converted to free-ways. Maybe I-355 should shoulder a longtime burden like the Tristate and northwest users have done for so long. We do know that our stretches were paid for in 1980.

Since it may be too much to ask that some tollways become free-ways, even though I still hold hope, at least let us return to the law that revenues from one stretch of tollway not be used to finance construction of other tollways. If they really fit the definition of user-paid tollways, "our" tollways should not be financing highways that can't "stand on their own."

The reforms that I have spelled out are just some that would bring accountability, responsibility, and responsiveness to the tollway system in Illinois. There are other well-thought ethics reforms that Rep. Lauren Beth Gash has introduced and still await legislative consideration.

The "top officials" in the tollway authority would have us believe that they have "cleaned up their act," and all of the scandals are behind them. The thing is that without true and intensive oversight, we'll never know. By the way, does anyone know what we can do with about 30,000 worthless I-PASS transponders? Do I make my point clear that the Illinois State Toll Highway Authority does need oversight—and the sooner the better.

Getting to the heart of the matter

f you study business writings, you'll learn that every author has a few pet strategies for business success. Some may focus on technology, branding or positioning. Others may champion quality control, financial management or personnel skills.

If you record all the great writers' "must-do" tips, the list would be a mile long. Most items on the list would qualify as good advice and would help you succeed in business.

I have a "must-do" for that list. I believe satisfying customers should be at the top. You see, satisfied customers are the heart of the matter.

The wrong focus

The line was long, and the customers were growing restless. One customer asked if there had been a death behind the counter. Another wondered how you could tell—no one was moving. I heard one harried worker tell another to hang on because the owner was on her

Sure enough, the owner appeared in moments. She immediately surveyed the lines and went to an order station. I expected the owner to open the register and get things moving. Instead, she ran the register totals to see what volume of business the store had done for the day. After repeating the action on the drive-through register, she disappeared into her office.

A few moments later, she came out of the office and began picking up trash and restocking inventory. I wanted to yell, "Please wait on customers, we're all tired of waiting."

For this small-business owner, other elements were more important than caring for customers. Customers came after procedures. Customers came after seeing what kind of day the store was having. Customers weren't the heart of the matter, they were just an unwanted by-product of doing business. This business wouldn't exist if the competition was stronger.

Getting to the heart

There are many ways to keep your customers satisfied. Here are a few quick tips to help you get to the heart of the matter:

• Focus. From the top down the emphasis of every organization must be to serve the customer. When the owner has other priorities, employees aren't at fault when the system breaks down.

• Training. Personnel experts cite stress as a major cause of employee turnover. One major cause of stress is the lack of a thorough training program. Businesses are so desperate for warm bodies to go to work that they just stick the newly hired folks into a slot and hope they can help.

 Make one sale at a time. It may sound trite, but you really can't do two things at one time.
 Therefore, put all of your energy into serving one customer and

• Ignore distractions. Recently, while traveling, I stopped at a well-known ice cream chain to enjoy one of the chain's cool treats. There were only two others

'Manpowernet' delivers worldwide training

Computer-based Global Learning Center offers 24 hour access

Information Technology employees of the local Manpower operation, with headquarters in Vernon Hills, will be among the first to benefit from a new training initiative, the Global Learning Center —what Manpower is calling "the world's largest classroom."

Unlike most universities, the Global Learning Center will not charge tuition. Its services will be free and open 24 hours a day to Manpower's employees and qualified candidates. Trainees will be able to access technical support from 7 a.m. to 3 a.m. for Manpower employees worldwide. Employees may learn at home or in training centers at local Manpower offices, including those in Gurnee, Lake Villa, Lake Zurich, Vernon Hills, Waukegan, Harvard, Marengo and McHenry.

In the pilot project in Lake and McHenry Counties, offerings include Manpower's Tech Track, which is designed for information technology professionals to learn the hottest programming languages and networking technologies, including SAP, C++ Visual Basic. These courses require 100 or more hours of study.

"Our training programs are proven to be successful," said Charles R. Bartels, franchise CEO. "They have been available to our employees and our customer's employees for years. The GLC will provide a new level of access and convenience for those who need skills training."

Eventually, more than 1,000 courses will be available, including all training modules in Manpower's existing Skillware programs. Skillware covers basic to advanced word processing, spreadsheets, presentation graphics and desk-top publishing. Trainees may complete these courses in as little as one day's time.

"The Global Learning Center will help employees pinpoint the skills they need, equip them with those skills, and track their progress. All of this activity will broaden their employment opportunities. Best of all, they can work and earn while they learn," said Bartels.

The Global Learning Center is one aspect of Manpowernet, the name given to the company's three-part Internet initiative. The GLC is an on-line "university" for Manpower's employees. The virtual campus will include curriculum guides, certification information, skill assessment centers and a training lab.

The second part of the Manpowernet initiative will move information to Manpower's customer companies. Starting with its larger global customers, Manpower will establish web sites that will provide those customers with Manpower information specific to their companies.

Finally, Manpowernet will electronically link all Manpower offices worldwide.

"We'll have the ability to instantaneously share information that helps us serve our customers and workers," Bartels said. "Our staff will come to work, link to Manpowernet and see everything that is new that day." In addition, Bartels expects Manpowernet to eliminate 95 percent of the paper that currently moves from the company's corporate offices to its field offices.

Manpower has 50 years of knowledge and experience in meeting the staffing and employment needs of our customers and workers," said Bartels.

"But, with the support of Manpower International's world headquarters, we have always faced challenges to quick and efficient distribution of information that can benefit our workers, customers and staff. Now, Manpowernet will allow us to actively move Manpower knowledge to the people who need it, when they need it, in a very accessible way."

Information about the Global Learning Center may be obtained by calling Mike Farrell, manager for training and development, at 856-1514.

Gilbane names John Braden Midwest Builder of the Year

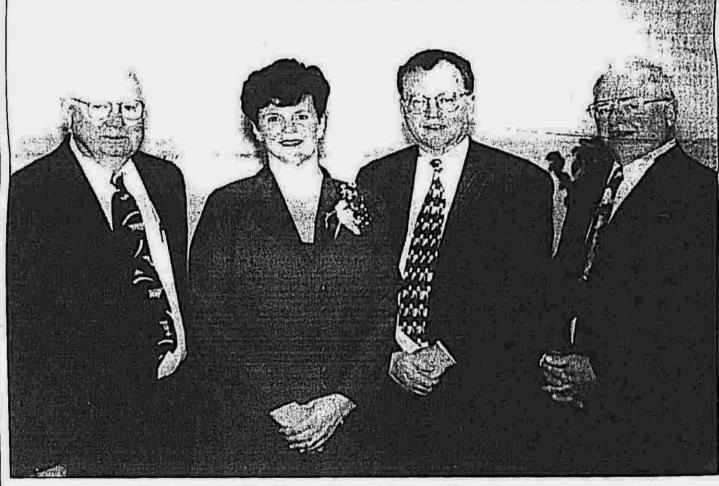

John Braden, project manager for Gilbane's Midwest Region, has been awarded the region's Builder of the Year Award for his management of the construction of Warren Township High School in Gurnee.

Gilbane annually honors project managers who best demonstrate excellence for a project completed during the previous year. The winner must have demonstrated excellence in areas such as project planning, organization, personnel management, quality, safety and minority business participation.

Braden led Gilbane's work in construction of a 344,000-square-foot, 2,000-student high school with a spine corridor connecting two distinct areas. One area contains the classroom wing, administrative offices, library and media center. The other area contains the field house, utility and competition gyms and locker areas, food service, theater, music and art functions.

One of the major challenges facing Braden and Gilbane on this project was the fast-track schedule. Construction began in May 1996, and the new school was ready for occupancy at the start of the school year on August 15, 1997. To make the schedule attainable, Braden used a two-project approach. Using the spine as the dividing line, the work was bid as two projects, increasing the administrative and management burden, but achieving the objective of on-time occupancy.

Superintendent of Schools for Warren Township, Dr. Calvin Leader praised Braden and the Gilbane team for their management of the project. "I was amazed," said Dr. Leader, "at the coordination that was done—the scheduling of the different contractors so that each contractor could sequentially do the things he needed to do in order to keep the project moving at the speed that we did."

Can opportunity knock too often in high-tech field?

Survey suggests job hopping can hurt career prospects

The grass may seem greener, but changing jobs too often in the information technology field could harm your long-term career prospects. In a recent nationwide survey, chief information offers (ClOs) said that having an average of five jobs in 10 years can make you look like a job hopper.

The survey was developed by RHI Consulting, a leading specialized consulting firm that provides information technology professionals on a project basis. Conducted by an independent research firm, the survey includes responses from 1,400 ClOs from a stratified random sample of U.S. companies with more than 100 employees.

ClOs were asked, "Over a 10-year span, how many job changes would it take for an employee to be viewed as a job hopper?" The mean response was five.

"Early in one's career, frequent job changes are more common as newcomers to the workforce strive to find their niche," said Greg Scileppi, executive director of RHI Consulting. "However, professionals looking to build a full-time, traditional career in information technology should consider the importance of developing a reputation for stability. The high cost of turnover and of training may cause IT managers to think twice before hiring individuals with too many entries on their resumes."

Scileppi added, "Many IT professionals who seek variety in their work opt for consulting or contract engagements, either as a permanent or short-term measure. As an interim approach, it avoids the appearance of a lack to loyalty to a single employer, yet provides wide exposure."

RHI Consulting provides firms with skilled IT professionals for projects ranging from multi-platform systems integration to help desk and network support. It was more than 80 locations in the United States, Canada and Europe. The Internet address is www.rhic.com.

"Many people that make it to the top understand these rules, and they expect others to know them too. most of the people I work with are upwardly mobile and good at their jobs but night lack the social skills to take that next step," explains Jane Wilger, President of Wilger Image Development, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Wilger provides common sense guidelines for situations business people frequently experience, whether they are engineers, salespeople; administrators or executives. In her seminars, Wilger discusses all aspects of business meals, how to dress for success, body language, introductions, and even cell phone manners. A few of her favorite tips follow below:

Introductions

While introductions may appear simple, these are the few moments in which critical first impressions are made on all sides.

"Always stand up when being introduced to someone" says Wilger "If you're sitting across a large table it may not be possible to reach across and shake hands, but you can at least stand."

The name of the person of highest rank, or the person of honor, should be spoken first; all others are being presented to that person. For example, "President Clinton, I'd like you to meet Jane Smith."

'The person of highest rank'" says Wiger, "is first the client, or any person who is outside of your organization, unless they are a member of your family. Second, it is the person with a higher position, so that a manager would be introduced to a vice president."

Handshakes

"Whether you're a man or a woman, jobs can still be won or lost on the basis of a firm handshake." says Wilger. Men and women should shake hands with each other the same way as a women to women or man to man. Offer your hand turned at a 90 degree angle to the floor and don't hold the fingers or try to crush the other person's hand with an iron grip.

During a cocktail hour, hold your drink in the left hand. Do this both to keep your right hand free, and so it is not cold and wet from holding the glass.

Some men may wait for a women to offer her hand to be shaken, rather than automatically extending their hand to her. Wilger advises women to "get your hand out there right away so there is no confusion." She offer the same advice to anyone who might have a disability in their right hand or arm. "Bob Dole puts his left hand out there to shake right away, and people just learn to shake left hands with him."

Dining

"Your napkin should go into your lap within the first ten seconds of sitting down," says Wilger. And once in your lap, the napkin should never again be placed on the table until everyone leaves at the end of the meal. If you need to stand or leave the table during the meal, the napkin should be left on your chair.

Wilger says she is often asked what to do if something is stuck in your teeth. "The rule is that it should come out the same way it went in." If it went in by hand, such as grape stones, olive pits or bits of nut shell, it goes out by hand. If it went on a spoon, such as something in soup, it should come out by spoon. An exception to this rule are small things such as fish bones, which likely went in on a fork, but can be removed by hand.

Wilger also notes it is best to be as discreet as possible. Trying too hard to cover up what your doing by hiding behind your napkin actually draws more attention to the process than if you try to quietly remove the problem food.

Paying the Bill

If you think there might be a scuffle about who will pay the bill, or if you simply want it handled in a swift and subtle way, Wilger suggests the following. "Arrive at the restaurant a few minutes early, tell them you are entertaining a client and ask them to run your credit card through. Then the bill will come straight to you and all you have to do at the end of the meal is figure he tip and sign your name."

Small talk

"The purpose of small talk is to find something in common and create a bond," says Wilger. "The best way to do this is to ask people questions. Trying to be witty is less important than being observant and asking good questions."

Wilger does not feel politics and religion need to be avoided as topics, as long as no blanket attacks are made, and especially if you know the person you're talking with has similar interests. However, "never, ever bring up sex in any contact," said Wilger. "And never swear. People get into social situation and

Sutton On The Lake offers most affordable prices in Lake County

Renters longing to bid their landlords farewell and enter the world of ownership can find affordable singlefamily homes at Sutton on the Lake in Round Lake Beach.

Home prices at this Sundance Homes community are among the lowest in Lake County, starting at $117,990, said Tom Small, division president of Sundance Homes.

"Sutton on the Lake offers an exceptional value," Small said. "We're attracting buyers who want a home in Lake County but thought they couldn't afford one. They quickly realize they can move into a new home for about the same amount they're paying in rent."

The Freedom Homes are priced from $117,900 to $136,990 for 1,261 to 1,750 square feet. Homes in the Premier Collection range from $152,990 to $169,990 for 1,627 to 2;107 square feet.

Nine floor plans are available, including the Liberty, which is the most affordable design.

This 1,261-square-foot home features two stories; three bedrooms; 1 1/2 baths; formal living room and eatin kitchen; elegant master bedroom suite with two separate closets; a firstfloor laundry room and attached garage.

Options include a family room with a fireplace, a two-car garage and basement.

Buyers are drawn to Sutton on the Lake's beautiful, 160-acre setting, which will include 480 homes when complete. The community is surrounded by park sites, Hook Lake and an additional 40-acre lake along the southeast border.

Round Lake Beach is a hub for outdoor activities, with more than 30 parks totaling about 500 acres available to residents. The Chain O'Lakes recreation area is nearby, as are the Prairie Grass Nature Center and Renwood Golf Course.

The park within the community will include a soccer field, football field, parking lot and bicycle trail.

Sutton on the Lake is on Monaville Road, one mile west of Route 83. To visit, take int. Hwy. 94 north to Ill. How To Survive The Job Search By Nancy Sakol

Dear ... Search.

I was terminated from my last job 7 months ago for reasons of our attendance. I held a job that started at 7:30 a.m. Ok, so I am not morning person, but I always made up the time that I missed if I was last coming in. I worked at this company for 2 years before I was let go. My problem is that I have been looking for a job while collecting unemployment compensation which is now running out. In the past few weeks, I have applied for loads of positions that are right up my alley. I fill out my applications in full as you have constantly recommended to your readers, complete with telephone numbers and contacts for references, but no luck. I contacted one of the places I applied to yesterday and spoke to the personnel department to see if I was under consideration for the position. I was told the references that they received, were not favorable, and therefore, I was not under consideration at this time. I asked this person if she could tell me who it was she received a bad reference from. She would not comment on that, saying that it was privileged company information, and was not to be shared outside of the Personnel Department. I told her I was under the impression that there were laws that keep a company from giving a bad reference or they could be sued for reasons of hindering a person being hired to work. Do you think that I should pursue this with an attorney? What direction would you take if you were in my shoes? Please help...unemployment is running out. W.J.-Libertyville

Dear W.L.

Sorry to hear that you have been having such a difficult time seeking employment over the past seven months while collecting unemployment compensation. Your letter however, states that you have just recently started actively looking for a job in the past few weeks...must have been a great summer, huh? Perhaps one of the things you missed during that time were the newspaper articles stating that Gov. Edgar signed into law, a protection device for all employers to give truthful information about former employees. This is truly on behalf of all employers a great help in the hiring process as they can now feel that they are receiving reliable information prior to hire. I was amused that you stated that although you were late for work all the time, you always managed to stay later to make up the difference. In doing so, you were most likely putting your boss in a bad position with his other employees who did show up to work on time. So getting to the crux of your problem, I have to tell you that if you have a poor attendance record following you, be up front about it when interviewing. If it is true, and you are ready to to take on the responsibility of being to work on time, tell a potential employer that you would like a chance to prove yourself capable of being to work on time. This is a time for all gainfully employed individuals to realize this new law can hurt. Keep yourself on your toes in the workplace and if ever leaving a job, leave professionally... ask for an exit review if possible. Good Luck.

Letters can be sent to Nancy Sakol c/o Lakeland Newspapers, P.O. Box 268, Grayslake, IL 60030

Ground to roof windows in the front of the Barber (406-30) provide a contemporary look to this 1,545 square foot home. With the daylight basement, an additional 1,029 square feet of living space is available to be developed. This would be an ideal home for a sloping lot, or for the smaller

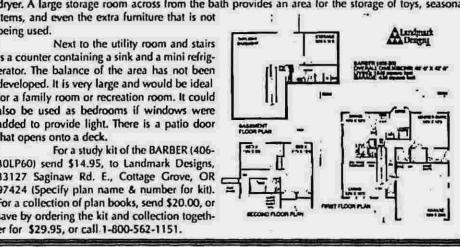

A covered porch provides dry entry into the Barber. Opposite the door is the stairway to upstairs. To the left is the living room which is brightened from the large windows. In the center, between the living and dining rooms is a double-sided fireplace with a wood box. This allows both rooms to enjoy the fire and for the heat to flow throughout the full area. The kitchen and nook are in the rear with a walk-in pantry. The stairs down to the basenent are adjacent to the kitchen, below the stairs to the second floor. The master suite is located in the rear of the home with a private deck. There is a walk-in closet and a full bath. Near the master suite entry is a half bath for the first floor. Upstairs, there are two bedrooms. Bedroom 3 would be ideal for a guest suite. It is very large with a storage area at one end and a private deck off the other. The bathroom, just outside the bedrooms, is divided with a pocket door. A laundry chute from this bath passes through the master suite closet below and into the basement. The unfinished basement contains a full bath with clothes collection and a washer and dryer. A large storage room across from the bath provides an area for the storage of toys, seasonal being used. Next to the utility room and stairs s a counter containing a sink and a mini refrigerator. The balance of the area has not been developed. It is very large and would be ideal for a family room or recreation room. It could also be used as bedrooms if windows were added to provide light. There is a patio door that opens onto a deck. For a study kit of the BARBER (406-30LP60) send $14.95, to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Rd. E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 (Specify plan name & number for kit). 🛎 For a collection of plan books, send $20.00, or save by ordering the kit and collection together for $29.95, or call 1-800-562-1151.

Ask The Vet

Ask The Vet-Dr. David Trask is part of a group of northern Lake County veterinarians who pooled their money and expertise to start All Creatures Emergency Hospital in Grayslake providing emergency care to pets nights, weekends and holidays. During the day he can be reached at Lindenhurst Animal Hospital Animal Hospital.

"SEE YOUR VET BEFORE YOU GET A PET!" Question: When I lay in bed to watch TV it never fails that my cat comes and kneads its paws into my chest. This makes me crazy, why is he doing this?

Answer: Although this may be an annoying habit of your cat's, it is actually a sign of contentment. Your cat obviously feels very comfortable and relaxed living with you. If you have ever seen a mother cat nursing her kittens you'll also notice that kittens knead while feeding.

Question: When my wife buys accessories for my cat such as beds, collars and bowls, she always tries to pick out colors that the cat may like. Can my cat really tell what color these items are? And if so, could she really have a preference?

Answer: It has been found that cats have only limited color vision capabilities. It probably is not likely that your cat would have a color preference for these items. Your wife may enjoy picking specific items for your cat, and obviously loves it. Since your cat doesn't mind, let your wife enjoy her gift giving.

Do you have questions? Please send them to Pet Parade, c/o Lakeland Publishers. P.O. Box 268, Grayslake, IL 60030 shepherd mix spayed female, Just three years old, Luna has an attractive black, brown and cream short coat and perk ears. Intelligence just shines out of her beautifu face and eyes. Luna is house-broken and good with older children. Luna possesses the positive and desirable qualities that set shepherds apart: she is calm, attentive, alert and eager to please. Luna will learn quickly and she will respond well to training. Luna lost her home when her family moved from a house to an apartment. but a young, active, playful dog like Luna needs a house and a fenced yard for romping, fun and exercise. Luna will be a wonderfully loyal, affectionate and attentive friend. Stop by Orphans of the Storm and take this great dog home with you. Luna is in Cage 30.
